—Famous last lines: "But, judge, I tell you I had the right of way."

—Shop in Circleville. Spend your money you earned in Circleville where you earned it.

—Some day some flatterer is going to take a shot at the king of Italy.

—The heads of the barbers' union oppose tips. Well, boys and girls, let's humor him.

—The mystery to us is that a man ever turns bandit when there are so many landlord jobs open.

—The world moves apace. We haven't seen a burnt-wood necktie holder for several years.

—Lloyd George attended his first public moving picture show the other day. The generation certainly is going to the dogs.

—Don't fail to read the opening chapter of, "When a Man Loves," a thrilling serial story which starts today in The Herald.

—Broken, the traditional meeting place of the witches of Walpurgis, night, April 30, is in the Hartz mountains in the province of Saxony, and is the highest peak in northern Germany. Its height is 3,745 feet.

—Even the Rotary club observed "Thrift Week" at its weekly luncheon in the Boggs Hotel Thursday noon. We saved fifty more cents this week than last. What'd you do?

—The Army is filled up each night with crowds of Circleville and Pickaway county folks attending the indoor circus. Don't miss it, folks; that petrified chap is good, too.

—Read the new serial story starting in The Circleville Herald today. If you read the first chapter you won't miss the rest. A lot of people here should stay at home evenings anyway; that'll cut the divorce business down quite a bit.

—We don't know what's on tap at the Chamber of Commerce meeting next Tuesday night but we have an idea they're going to surprise us and serve turkey, after all. We're for turkey, Thanksgiving Day or any other time, et al., pumpkin pie.

—Publishers from all over Ohio will attend the meeting of the Associated Ohio Dailies in Columbus, at the Neil House, Monday and Tuesday. These boys are certainly going to give us some good papers this year and we're goin' up and find out how to improve The Circleville Herald.

—If we doped out the weather in Circleville we'd say we must have had the mixture mixed up and were giving our city April weather in January. But the only fellow it's making mad here is the coal man and we can't blame him for feeling a little out of sorts.

—A mad scramble for "buried treasure" is under way at Welland, Ont., as the result of dredging operations in the harbor. The first dip of a big steam shovel brought up a dozen bottles of fine, old ale. Thirty persons are hunting bottles with grappling hooks. The ale is believed to have been dumped into the harbor by a damaged rum ship.

—A baby girl weighing 1 pound, 4 ounces, born 2 1-2 months ahead of time in a New York hospital, is believed to be the smallest baby on record. The mother is a New York woman, Mrs. Celia Taub. The devotion of a nurse has kept the tiny infant alive so far. So kind is nature to the young, that if the child gets a start and is well nourished it may stand as good a chance as a normal baby of some day becoming a full-sized and healthy woman. Many invalids would welcome as good a chance to get well.

UNITED STATES GAINS GROUND IN CONFERENCE

Avowed Opponents of Yankee Policies Receive Right of Way at Havana.

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
HAVANA, CUBA, Jan. 20.—The threatened Latin-American insurrection against the Latin-American policy of the United States appeared today to be pretty well squelched. Yeoman diplomatic work has been accomplished by the American delegation since its arrival in Havana to deal with the sixth Pan-American conference. As a result of this work, the conference swung into the committee stage today with most of the opposition elements in a friendly mood.

Mexico's delegation, for example, is so friendly that Ambassador Dwight Morrow is returning to his post in Mexico City this week-end. Nobody believes that Ambassador Morrow would leave vacant his chair in this Pan-American conference and return to Mexico City if there was any likelihood of Mexico's upsetting the international apple cart at Havana.

Hughes Saves Day
Similarly with other threatened controversies, Charles Evans Hughes, who admittedly is the outstanding international figure in the conference, graciously declined to serve as chairman of either of the most important committees of the conference—those leading with the codification of public international law and with the future status of the Pan-American Union.

Mr. Hughes pleaded that his duties as chairman of the American delegation would prevent his giving adequate time to the work of the committees. And instead of Mr. Hughes accepting the honors himself, he nominated for chairman of the international law committee Dr. Gustavo Guerrero of Salvador, who has been among the most vigorous of critics of United States policy in Nicaragua and through Central America generally.

Dr. Guerrero Pleased
Dr. Guerrero was highly pleased by the compliment of being chosen the chairman of the most important committee of the conference. It is this committee that will have to deal with the question of whether under international law the United States has or has not "invaded" Nicaragua by the dispatch of thousands of marines to occupy the towns and insure a "free election" next year.

The first chairmanship of committee which Mr. Hughes refused was that of the Pan-American Union. This is an important committee for no other reason than that some of the smaller countries of Latin-America are insisting that the union be removed from the category of an international debating society and given power to supervise such things as the present American military occupation of Nicaragua.

The chairmanship was given to Enrique Olaya, of Columbia, who, within his diplomatic limits, has not entirely approved of American diplomacy in Nicaragua and elsewhere in Latin-America.

SEARCH NEW YORK FOR MISSING GIRL

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(INS)—The search for Miss Frances St. John Smith, 18-year-old student who vanished from Smith college a week ago, swung back to New York City today with the arrival here of her brother, St. John Smith Jr., and a private detective.

Their hurried trip from Northampton, Mass., where the search was centered, stirred rumors that Frances was being held captive by abductors waiting for a further increase in the $10,000 reward offered by the girl's father.

Another report was that the young student has sought seclusion in a thickly populated neighborhood where she was likely to remain unrecognized.

MINERS' RELIEF CAMPAIGN IS STARTED IN COUNTY

Held as Firebug

John J. Fisher, former policeman, leaving the court after being held as the man who touched off seven blazes in Washington, D. C., in one hectic night for the firemen. Fisher denies the charge, but admits having witnessed three of the fires.

SMITH BARRED IN TAKING HIS JOB IN SENATE

New "Unwritten Law" Established as Members of Upper House Take Action.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(IN S)—A new "unwritten law," barring from the senate men elected through the expenditure of great campaign funds, was drying on the statute books today as a result of the senate's action in excluding Frank L. Smith (R.) of Illinois.

For the first time in its history, the senate denied a seat to a senator-elect holding legal credentials, on the ground that excessive campaign expenditures tainted his election with "fraud and corruption." In excluding Smith, the senate formally endorsed the "rule" laid down in the old Newberry case six years ago, that heavy campaign expenditures invalidated an election.

The vote ousting Smith was so overwhelming it surprised even his opposition. It was 61 to 23, with twenty-one Republicans, one farm-laborite and thirty-nine Democrats voting against him, while but two Democrats and twenty-one Republicans voted for him.

LAX DOG OWNERS TO BE GIVEN FINES

County Auditor Bryce Briggs will impose a penalty of $1 on owners of dogs, who have not taken out licenses, beginning Friday. So far 2,400 dog licenses have been sold. Last year 2,800 were sold. The auditor says that there are at least 3,600 dogs here and that every seventh person owns a dog in this city. Last year 800 dogs were not licensed, but this year the dog catcher will visit every home in the county.

FIRM INCORPORATES

LONDON, O., Jan. 20.—Among incorporations granted charters this week was that of the Armstrong Furnace Co. of London, by Martin B. Armstrong. Capital stock, $750,000.

CLOTHING IS BEING SOUGHT FOR CHILDREN

Circleville National Guard Officers Announce Collection Dates in County.

Addresses by Circleville officers of the Ohio National Guard will be part of the Pickaway county program for obtaining money, clothing and food for starving children in the mining district of Ohio.

This line of activity was decided upon by the National Guard officers of Circleville, Thursday night in accordance with the proclamation of Governor Donahey, who has called upon the citizens of Ohio to aid the children, and who designated the National Guard units as the receiving agents.

Lieut. Col. Harry D. Jackson presided at the meeting of the officers and Lieut. Joseph Lynch acted as recorder.

Arrange Addresses

It was decided to make an appeal through the public schools of the county for clothing. Arrangements were made to have an officer address each of the schools, explaining the needs of the miners' children. They will ask that those desiring to donate clothing bring it to the school buildings where it will be collected by an army truck.

Persons who have no children in the schools are asked to send their contributions to the Armory or to place them on their porches where they will be collected by the guardsmen.

The schedule of collection of contributions will be as follows: Schools east of the Scioto river on Thursday, Jan. 26.

Schools west of the river on Friday, Jan. 27.

In Circleville, homes and schools, on Thursday, Jan. 26, beginning at 9 a. m.

Money is Welcome

Attention is called to the fact that the clothing donated should be of sizes suitable for children up to 16 years of age. Layettes are also badly needed.

Money will be very welcome and may be given to any National Guard officer who will transmit it to the proper destination. The state secretary of the treasury will handle all money and the state auditor will audit all accounts in the relief campaign.

The Circleville officers of the Ohio National Guard who are authorized to act as agents are: Lieut. Col. Jackson; Capt. Charles S. Gusman; Capt. Austin W. Holman; Capt. Lloyd Jones; Lieut. Frank Littleton; Lieut. John A. Ryan and Lieut. Lynch.

WILL OF IOWAN IS FILED IN COUNTY

An authenticated copy of the will of Harold G. Ebert of Polk county, Iowa, has been filed in the probate court of Pickaway county. The estate, which is estimated at $3,200, is located in Ashville. The real property is bequeathed to an aunt, Mrs. Fredericka Gerhardt, living near this city, and a cousin, Charles Ebert, of Ashville. The latter is also given all the personal property of the deceased. The will was witnessed by D. H. Ebert and A. B. Shawver.

COOLIDGE SENDS HIS GOOD WISHES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(I NC)—President Coolidge today sent a telegram of congratulations to Emperor Hirohito, on the betrothal of Prince Chichibu, brother of the emperor of Japan, and his presumptive to the throne, to Miss Setsu Matsudaira, daughter of the Japanese ambassador in Washington. The wedding is to take place in Tokyo probably in September.

SHORT ILLNESS ENDS IN DEATH OF MRS. LEIST

Aged Resident of Washington Township Succumbs at Her Residence.

Mrs. Lenora Roby Leist, 73, widow of John D. Leist, died at her home in Washington township, at 2:30 a. m. Friday, following a week's illness with complication of diseases.

Mrs. Leist was born in Tarleton on Jan. 1, 1855, the daughter of George and Lavina Schlotman Roby. She was married in January, 1884 to Mr. Leist.

She is survived by a son, Fred Leist, of Deshler, O.; a sister, Mary Roby, at home; a half sister, Mrs. Ellen Thomas, of Tarleton; two brothers, Luther Roby, of Stoutsville, and Noah Roby, of West Unity, and a grandchild.

The funeral services, which will be in charge of Mader and Ebert, will be announced following the arrival of the son.

Welsh; teller, Robert Woodhouse. Directors are H. B. Lenhart, Reed Chrisman, Herbert Adams, J. W. Hume, Leon Lenhart, H. B. Welsh, John Vallery, Eber W. Bidwell.

COLD WEATHER ARRIVES AFTER WIND AND RAIN

Utilities Companies Suffer Biggest Loss in County During Storm.

Cold weather followed Friday in the wake of the rain and wind which visited Pickaway county, Thursday.

Snow flurries Friday morning were succeeded by bright sunshine, which failed, however, to have any appreciable effect on the low temperature.

Most of the damage in Thursday's storm was suffered by the utilities companies and their patrons.

Electric light and power in Circleville was off for an hour Thursday afternoon as the result of a short circuit at Bell's Siding of lines of the Ohio Utilities company and the Scioto Valley Traction company.

Two poles, carrying 33,000 volt lines of the Ohio Utilities company, were blown down eight miles south of Circleville. Minor damage resulted when service lines in Circleville were damaged by the storm.

The traction company had several poles blown down, but the carrier's service was interrupted for only 15 minutes by the mishaps.

In Circleville and vicinity no trouble was experienced by the Citizens Telephone company. East of Ashville, however, 16 poles were blown down, putting 100 rural telephones out of commission and stopping service over some of the toll lines for a short time.

DINNER PLANNED BY BROTHERHOOD

Nurse that appetite!
It will be needed for the annual baked ham dinner with which the Brotherhood of the Methodist church observes Washington's Birthday.

The arrangements for the dinner were announced Friday by George Fitzpatrick, president of the brotherhood. It will be served Wednesday evening, Feb. 22, at the Methodist church, beginning at 5 o'clock.

In the past these dinners have been very popular and this year the tickets have been limited to 500. The sale of the tickets is now being conducted by members of the brotherhood.

House Members Are Reported Flocking to Plan—Equalization Fee Left Out.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(UP)—Passage by the house of a compromise farm relief bill which President Coolidge will sign instead of the disputed McNary-Haugen measure with its equalization fee, appears probable as a result of the last few days' developments.

It was predicted freely today that the house agriculture committee would report out a bill lacking the equalization fee to which the administration objects, and that a majority of McNary-Haugen bill supporters would vote for such a measure on the floor.

Maneuvered into the delicate position of standing for a measure that apparently has no chance of presidential approval, supporters of the McNary-Haugen bill are asking themselves whether it would not be better to work out a compromise that would mean some relief rather than get no legislation at all.

Revolt Spreading
To prevent deliberate creation small way in the agriculture committee, seemed today to be spreading, despite efforts of farm leaders to hold their ranks in line.

A probable compromise is along the lines of the Curtis-Crisp bill which is understood to have administration support. This would set up financing corporations for each crop having a surplus, with power to buy up this surplus in the open market and hold it for better prices.

To prevent deliberate creation of surpluses, the measure prohibits operation of the machinery for a second year surplus if that surplus is caused by increased acreage. The machinery would continue functioning if the second surplus resulted from natural beneficial conditions. The Curtis-Crisp bill was defeated in the house committee last session by only one vote.

Farm Bureau in Line
The Farm Bureau Federation and other farm organizations favoring the McNary-Haugen bill will continue to support it, it is believed. Chester H. Gray, legislative representative of the Farm Bureau, has declined to give way, pointing out he is powerless in the face of the organization's mandate.

Political observers today expressed the view that rejection of the McNary-Haugen bill by congress in favor of a compromise measure would help rather than hinder the presidential movement of Ex-Governor Frank O. Lowden, Illinois, who endorses the bill. They say it would produce a grievance and therefore an issue.

If the McNary-Haugen measure is dropped, some Democrats will attack farm Republicans on the ground that their action is governed by political expediency in this presidential year, it was learned today.

CORDELL HULL ENTERS FIGHT FOR PRESIDENT

Former Democratic National Chairman Endorsed by His Home State.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (INS)—Rep. Cordell Hull of Tennessee, former Democratic national chairman, was presented to the nation today as the south's latest candidate for the presidency.

Hull was entered in the race by the unanimous endorsement of the Tennessee delegation in congress. He may make a formal announcement later.

Putting him forward as a "harmony candidate," the Tennessee delegation spokesmen emphatically denied that Hull was being proposed as a favorite son or a stalking horse to check-mate any candidate now in the field.

A veteran of nearly 20 years in congress, Hull achieved his greatest national prominence as the party's chairman from 1921 to 1924.

OHIO CHECKING ON DAMAGE BY SEVERE STORM

CINCINNATI, Jan. 20 (INS)—Ohio was checking today on the devastation wrought by a tornado-like storm that swept through the southern part of the state late yesterday.

One person is known to have been killed. Property damage is estimated at close to a million dollars.

The freak storm cut across the Kentucky line and carried destruction into the interior of that state. A score of persons were reported injured in the Louisville district. No fatalities occurred, but property damage was high.

The greatest destruction from the gale in Ohio was suffered by Cumminsville, a suburb of Cincinnati. A number of homes and a school house were blown down at Lindenwald, O. Several school children received minor injuries.

A. R. Kruger, a Dayton, Ohio, salesman, was killed at Washington C. H., when the cornice of a building was loosened by the wind and fell into his automobile.

HICKMAN ILL; SANITY TESTS RESPONSIBLE

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Jan. 20 (UP)—William Edward Hickman, slayer of Marion Parker, was ill in his cell today, physicians said, as an aftermath to spinal punctures made by alienists searching for traces of insanity.

Dr. Benjamin Blank, jail physician, declared Hickman had "a fairly heavy pulse, some fever and considerable pain." He scoffed at reports that the slayer might contract spinal meningitis.

"His reaction," Blank said, "is a natural one and he probably will not fully recover until Saturday."

EL PASO, Tex., Jan. 20 (UP)—Thomas Hickman, father of Edward Hickman, Los Angeles slayer who goes to trial next week, was en route to Los Angeles today to aid his son.

The father is expected to testify that he believes the son is afflicted with hereditary insanity, inherited from his mother, who once spent a term in an asylum.

London Soon to Have High Lunatic Percentage

LONDON, Jan. 20—(INS)—London is in a fair way to becoming the city having the most lunatics in the world.

A report on mental deficiency in the city prepared by the London county council shows that while more people are being certified as insane in London every year the percentage of those who recover is decreasing.

The total number of London lunatics under the care of public institutions has risen from 16,362 in 1880 to 24,863 in 1927.

TEN RULES OF FINANCE GIVEN TO ROTARIANS

Columbus Banker Advises Investment in Sound Securities—Singer Is Heard

Ten financial commandments of thrift were given to members of the Rotary club at their noonday luncheon in the Boggs hotel, Thursday, by Avery G. Clinger, vice president of the Columbus Trust and Savings bank, his talk being timely, due to the fact that this is National "Thrift Week."

Prior to his address, Rotarian E. A. Brown, chairman of this month's entertainment committee, introduced Miss Emma Johnson, advance agent for the United States army band which will play here Wednesday, Feb. 1, under the auspices of the Howard Hall Post, American Legion. The Legionnaires, she said, had brought the huge band to Circleville—the smallest of the 44 cities in which it will play on its first tour, authorized by the War Department—at a large expense, and she asked the Rotarians and citizens generally support the concert which will be given in the afternoon and evening of the date mentioned.

Miss Johnson also played and sang several delightful solos, which were enthusiastically received.

2. Live on a budget.
3. List expenditures.
4. Have a bank account.
5. Pay your bills promptly.
6. Buy life insurance.
7. Make a will.
8. Own your own home.
9. Invest surplus funds in sound securities.
10. Share with others.

In the last commandment, Mr. Clinger said: Do not live solely for yourself. Carry others along with you when you are successful. Share your good luck."

Investment Advice

In regard to investing, he said after you had bought your own home, life insurance, and made a will, if any surplus was left, to invest it in sound securities. Whether these securities are sound or not can be determined by consulting your banker or a reliable investment and bond house. Payment of bills promptly establishes credit, he said, urging also that the individual make contact with a bank and bankers by making deposits and enjoying friendly relationship.

Announcement was made that Fred Brunner, Oscar Howard, Fred C. Clark and Arthur Wilder had contributed bed sheets, pillow slips and coverings for the three hospital beds, the beds having been donated by Press Enderlin, John Ryan and the Rotary club, three in all. Rotarian Frank Lynch also donated rubber sheeting for the three beds which were presented free to the local hospital.

Rotarians voted to move their Jan. 31 meeting up a day, Feb. 1, so that officers of the U. S. band might provide entertainment for them.

32 FARMERS STUDY RECORDS FOR YEAR

Biggest "Summary School" Is Conducted by O. S. U. Specialists.

Complete accounts for 32 Franklin county farms were checked and summarized, early this month, in what was probably the largest summarizing school ever held. The reports were analyzed by the specialists of the Rural Economics Department of the Ohio State university. Twenty-two of the records were brought in by the farm owners themselves, and the remaining 10 by Smith-Hughes students who have kept records on their famers' farms, as a part of their agricultural educational projects.

One of the men has kept complete records of his farm work for seven years, three for six years, two for five years. Several of them have discovered profit leaks and inefficient practices on their farms, through the keeping of the accounts, and have made or will make changes in their farm methods as a result.

This year four schools have been held for farmers who propose to begin keeping accounts, and three more such schools have been scheduled by the specialists.

The records summarized at the "summary" school are now being analyzed by the marketing specialists at the university and are expected to yield valuable information on Franklin county farm practices.

New Stories Told In Volume on Life of Hans Anderson

LONDON, Jan. 20 (INS) Hitherto unpublished details of the life of Hans Christian Anderson, the Danish story-teller whose fairy tales have been loved by children the world over for generations, are contained in a new biography which is attracting great attention here.

The volume—"Hans Anderson, the Man," contains many revelations regarding the life of the weaver of fairy tales, and delves deep into his tragic love affair with Jenny Lind, the famous Swedish singer. The book reveals that although Anderson won the hearts of children of the world through his work, he could never induce a woman to be his wife, and died an unhappy bachelor.

Although he was attracted by many women, the biography says, he gave his heart only to Jenny Lind, even though she would not marry him. He made every effort to win her love. She went about with him, entertained him in her home, and was happy to be with him—but only as a friend.

The writer seeks to find the reason that all Anderson's efforts to win himself a wife proved futile. Some contemporaries said that his personal appearance defeated his longings for a wife and a cozy home. He was immensely tall and awkward, and in a poem of his youth

he compared himself to a "scarecrow in a field."

Artificial Silk Is Called Bright Spot In British Industry

LONDON, Jan. 20 (INS)—Artificial silk probably provides the brightest spot in British industry at the present moment.

Latest figures show rapid and continuous progress. During the first nine months of 1927 27,450,019 pounds of artificial silk were produced in the United Kingdom as against 18,755,422 pounds during the first three-quarters of this year was actually larger than the whole of last year's production, which came to 25,487,551 pounds. It is expected that the total production for this year will amount to about 36,500,000 pounds, an increase of about 45 per cent on 1926.

The New Circleville Herald

Today The Circleville Herald comes to you in a new dress.

It is the zero hour, the moment we, here in The Herald office, have all been waiting and hoping for.

An eight-column, city-size newspaper that compares very favorably with any other newspaper in the country in a city under 15,000. New features, too.

Probably you've enjoyed "Bringing Up Father," "Just Kids," Dr. Copeland's health talk, the society column or the sport page, the editorials or "The Rambler," the daily editorial cartoon or the telegraph news.

All these features have been added to The Circleville Herald in the past month. But more are coming, as you will note by those new departments, and new features, you will find in The Circleville Herald today. All of this is just a part of the expansion program that is planned for the people of Circleville and Pickaway county with an aim to giving them the best newspaper they ever had.

And in return all that we ask is a measure of support, a measure of fairness, a measure of kindness, without malice and with a vow that you'll be for your home town and your home town newspaper. Then we'll try and do the rest.

All Can Help

The progress of a community does not depend merely on the enterprise and activity of its leading business men and organizations.

Every clerk who works in a store, every mechanic in his factory, every farmer in his field, every housewife in her home, each one has some effect on the future of that community.

If the salesman is actively pushing for new patronage and to please old customers, he helps the city's retail business to grow. If the mechanic is efficient, he assists his employer to sell more goods. If the farmer is diligent and scientific, he adds to the resources of the neighborhood. If the housewife improves the home place, she promotes the city's reputation for culture and finish. We all have to do our share, to secure the development of Circleville.

Investigating the Submarines

Every family that has a boy in submarine service will be pleased by the position taken by President Coolidge and Secretary Wilbur, that there should be a sweeping investigation by competent experts, of the recent sinking of the submarine S-4, which should also consider possible safety devices for the submarine vessels now in commission.

The tragic fate of the S-4 touched the hearts of the nation. Our people want no more such tragedies to happen, if human skill and science can devise some methods of avoiding them.

The attention of the whole country has been drawn to the methods by which submarine service can be protected and out of the thousands of suggestions made, there must seemingly be some that would be effective. These men who in behalf of their country go down to this weird position at the bottom of the sea, are entitled to all that technical science can do to make their enterprise a reasonably safe one.

Who'll Work With His Hands?

The schools are turning out an unlimited number of bosses, managers, directors, superintendents, foremen, go-getters, also salesmen, bookkeepers, clerks, etc. Meanwhile there is a shortage of people who will take hold with their hands and do work calling for muscle.

This disparity will probably increase, judging by figures given out by the National Industrial Conference Board, which finds that the number of unskilled workers who returned to Europe since 1924, is three times as many as those who came thence to the United States. Perhaps many of these people were disappointed when they found they could not pick up gold in our streets.

The man with the hoe and the pick is needed. There is an equal demand for the one who can swing a carpenter's hammer, a bricklayer's trowel, or a house painter's brush. Many who practice these trades are driving shiny automobiles, while clerks and bookkeepers are walking.

Anyone should be glad to shake hands cordially with the man in overalls, and be glad to walk down town with him. The fellow who can mix paint so it will stick or who can fix the chimney so it won't smoke, has practical views of life. We can all learn from him.

We should pay high respect to the farmer. As an owner of land, he has a position of substantial dignity. When we give due social honors to such people, more boys will see that these callings are desirable.

Infatuations

Under the smooth and polite surface of the modern community, hot emotions are seething, and many of them threaten dangerous explosions.

Many men and women become possessed by irrational infatuations for persons of the opposite sex. Girls fall violently in love with vicious men, won by the sweet and mannerly ways such fellows know how to assume in their company. And men will get infatuated with girls who will never give loyal devotion to any husband.

And if their friends argue with these folks, they angrily declare that these unworthy flames are paragons of excellence. Love is said to be blind. Oculists and opticians find it extremely difficult to fit him with spectacles.

Knowing folks say that the victims of these sentimental contagions need some new interest to divert their minds. The baby cries for the moon, but if you give him a powerful new tin horn, the moon ceases to be essential to his happiness.

Similarly many young people recovered from their attacks of calf love when they got interested in some new athletic sport, or obtained a new job that occupied their entire attention. It is claimed that young people can't help falling in love, but it is well not to swim any deep rivers before you have learned how to keep afloat.

It is claimed the American home is breaking down. It is surely in danger of doing so if they dance the modern dances on the parlor floor.

There is a movement for revision of the calendar, but it won't be popular unless it makes pay day come oftener, and rent day not so often.

CHAPTER XI

I ARRIVED at Brooks Field on March 15, 1924, but was not enlisted as a flying cadet until March 19. Ordinarily a cadet enlists at the nearest station to his home and is given free transportation to his post of service and back to the enlistment point after his discharge. By enlisting at Brooks I was entitled to no transportation allowance, except, possibly, bus fare back from Kelly, where I graduated a year later.

There were 104 of us in all, representing nearly every State in the Union. We filled the cadet barracks to overflowing. There were two cots to each window and some of us were even quartered in the recreation hall. We were a carefree lot, looking forward to a year of wonderful experiences before we were graduated as second lieutenants and given our wings. Nearly all of us were confident that we would be there to graduate a year later. We had already passed the rigid physical and mental entrance examinations in which so many of the other applicants had failed. We had no doubt of our ability to fly, although most of us had never flown before and we had yet to get our first taste of the life of a flying cadet.

By the time we had been in the barracks a few hours stories began circulating around which originated from conversations with the last class of cadets who were waiting to be transferred to the advanced flying school at Kelly.

Rumors of "Benzine Boards" and "wash-outs," "academic work" and "eight-hour examinations," one and "eight-hour examinations," "one eighty's," and "check pilots," "walls with ears" and "cadet etiquette"—these and a hundred other strange terms were condescendingly passed down to us by the old cadets of six months experience. Someone remarked that less than forty per cent of us could expect to finish the primary training at Brooks and that probably half of those would be washed out at Kelly.

By bed check that night we had already begun to feel the apprehension which is part of a flying cadet's life from his first day at Brooks until he has received his pilot's wings at Kelly.

Our actual flying training was to begin on the first of April. Two weeks were required to become organized and learn the preliminary duties of a cadet. During these two weeks we were inoculated against typhoid and small-pox at the hospital, taught the rudiments of cadet etiquette, given fatigue duty, required to police the grounds surrounding our barracks, inspected daily, and instructed and given examinations in five subjects. In our spare time we were allowed to look around the post or take the bus to San Antonio, provided, however, that we were back in bed not later than ten o'clock on Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights. At all other time we could stay out as late as we desired.

When we did have a few spare moments in the afternoon, they were usually spent in trying to

"chizzle" a hop from one of the instructors on the line.

Early one morning we were allowed to take the training ships out and push them to the line for the old cadets to fly. But when one of the planes nosed over after eight husky rookies heaved up on the hundred and fifty pound tail, it was decided to put us to work moving hydrogen cylinders for a balloon ascension.

As the first of April approached we were looking forward to the start of actual flying with great anticipation. Coupled with this was the anxiety of waiting for the returns from our examination papers, the failure of any two of which would be sufficient cause for their owner to be washed out from the courses.

The flying instruction was carried on from two stages or different sections of the field. I was assigned to B stage, which was about a half-mile out in the field from the cadet barracks. Each instructor had about six cadets assigned to him, and early in the morning on the first day of April our instruction commenced. I was assigned to Sergeant Winston, together with five other cadets. We pushed his instruction plane out from the hangar to the line. Sergeant Winston picked out one of us, told him to get into the rear cockpit and was off. The rest of us walked over to B stage, watching for tarantulas along the road on the way.

In 1924, the Curtiss Jenny was still used by the army for a training plane, although the 90 H. P. Curtiss OX-5 engines had been replaced by 150 H. P. Hispano-Suizas. The more modern types of planes for training were still in the experimental stage. The Jennies had been designed during the war and they were becoming obsolete, but it is doubtful whether a better training ship will ever be built, although undoubtedly the newest type is much safer. Jennies were underpowered; they were somewhat tricky and they splintered badly when they crashed hard; but when a cadet learned to fly one of them—well, he was just about capable of flying anything on wings with a reasonable degree of safety.

I had been particularly fortunate in my assignment of an instructor. Sergeant Winston, held the record for flying time in the army with about thirty-three hundred hours. He was an excellent pilot, and knew how to instruct if he wanted to. When my turn came he asked me how much flying time I had had, and after I told him about three hundred and twenty-five hours he turned the controls over to me, with orders to take the ship around and land it. I had some difficulty in flying with my right hand. The wartime ships which I was accustomed to were built to be flown with the left, but after the Armistice it was decided to change the throttle over to the other side, on the theory that the right hand was the natural one to fly with. After three landings, however, Sergeant Winston got out of the cockpit and told me to fly around and land it. I had some used to right-handed piloting.

When we were not flying we were gathered around the stage house watching the progress of our classmates and learning how to turn the propellers over in starting the engine without placing ourselves in a position to be struck in case it kicked backwards. To a pilot, the propeller is the most dangerous part of his plane, and is a constant source of worry to him when his ship is on the ground among people who vie with each other in seeing how close they can stand to the whirling blade while the motor is still running. Then there is usually a contest to see who can be first to move it up and down after it stops turning over.

A cadet is usually given about ten hours of dual instruction before he is allowed to solo. The instructor first takes him up, and after flying around for a few minutes, allows the student to take hold of the controls to get an approximate idea of the amount and direction of movement necessary for gentle banks and turns. Then the instructor throws his hands up in the air in full view of the student—the signal that he has turned over the entire control of the ship. The cadet is given the opportunity suddenly to realize that flying is not a simple operation of pulling the stick back to go up and pushing it forward to come down, but that an instinctive and synchronized movement of all controls is necessary even to keep the machine in level flight.

Frenchmen Can Learn Much From Americans In Matters of Money

PARIS, Jan. 20.—(INS)—Frenchmen have much to learn from Americans in matters of money, according to Professor Fortunat Strowski, recently returned from the new world.

"For an American," he writes in "Comœdia," "wealth is only a thing of the moment. It does not belong to the family; it is in the hands of the possessor like a ball in the hand of some player. The ball is thrown, he receives it and returns it, trying to place it according to the rules of the game which is either won or lost, as far as he is concerned."

"In America, the father of a family owes no patrimony to his children. He esteems it enough to feel certain that his children are able to make as good a living as he did and thus, will his fortune to some hospital or university."

"The American uses his money for doing great things; the Frenchman uses his for establishing a great family or doing a lot of foolish things—this is the great difference."

Monsieur Strowski says he was pleased to find that almost no American thinks much about economizing. He is not obliged to have much money at one time. Madame's fur coat can be paid on the installment plan, a dollar a month. Monsieur's morris chair and his car in the same manner.

"In America," writes Monsieur Strowski in conclusion, "money

CHAPTER I

Fabien Ready to Become a Priest

It was a glorious May morning filled with great promise of happiness and love!

The Chevalier Fabien Des Grieux, a romantically poetic youth, talked quietly with some fellow graduate students at the White Horse Inn, at Amiens, while waiting for the Paris diligence to carry them on to St. Sulpice to complete their training for the priesthood.

Fabien's parents belonged to one of the first families of Picardy and he gallantly reflected the fact that he was a gentleman of the highest type. He was a great favorite with his student associates and the inhabitants of the town. His life had been so well regulated and studious that his masters had pointed to him as a model of conduct for other scholars. Not that Fabien made any sacrifice of efforts to acquire this reputation, but a naturally tranquil disposition and a love for study had made him apply his time to work and duty. He had an abhorrence for vice that was accepted as positive proof of virtue.

Fabien had earned his title, of Chevalier, by being decorated with the cross and when the Bishop of the Diocese proposed that upon graduation he enter the church, Fabien accepted the honor as one entirely to his liking.

Presently a lay brother rode up to the inn and, leaving his mount outside the gate, began searching for Fabien among the people at the little iron tables in the yard. He was greatly relieved to learn from one of the students that the youth he sought was in the tavern. The windy old man's mission was important and his face lighted up with great sympathy and love when he saw Fabien talking with Jean Tiberge, a loyal friend and fellow student—one need never worry about the company that Fabien found congenial!

Her elder brother, Andre Lescant, resplendent in the gay uniform of the Guards, watched her.

"My son," said the lay brother, taking a little medal from his belt and quietly presenting it to Fabien. "Here is a medal for protection against worldly evil—the Bishop gave me to give it to you before you leave us to complete your training."

Fabien bowed in reverent thanks over the lay brother's hand as he accepted the holy token. A avowed spiritual expression of great value to him. He could not refrain from thinking how little he needed such a charm. Worldly pleasures and appetites could never tempt him from his studies and callings! And those who knew him were just as sure of this as Fabien himself.

"Ah! Fabien, I am delighted," broke in Tiberge, putting his arm about his friend's shoulder. "You have earned that reward in all fairness. None of us can equal your brilliance and unselfish devotion."

"I deserve no credit—I have simply found my calling and everything else follows along naturally."

"Perhaps that is true," agreed Tiberge. "It is quite characteristic that you take no credit for anything you do."

A beautiful smile lighted up Fabien's face as he heard his friend's compliment.

"You know, Tiberge, my greatest regret at leaving here is that you are not ready to depart at the same time. It is difficult to leave a loyal friend with whom one has grown up. I shall never forget you, and your thousand good qualities. We shall meet again, later on when we become—"

The remainder of Fabien's sentence was left unfinished when the students in the courtyard loudly announced that the diligence was appearing down the road.

The soft green leaves danced gracefully on their wayward branches and gently brushed against the dusty diligence as it wound along the narrow road through the sunshine.

spoils men less than in Europe, and poverty ennobles them less as well."

MEDICAL SOCIETY ELECTS

LONDON, O., Jan. 20.—Doctors of London and Madison County met at the call of Dr. R. H. Trimble, county health commissioner, and the county medical society was reorganized. Dr. Trimble was elected president and Dr. H. P. Sparling of London secretary.

R. L. Clarkson, the new head of the Chase National bank, New York, is only 36.

The fragrant pink blossoms from the flowering trees fluttered against the windows and mingled with the dust as the horses plodded on toward the Inn.

Spring seemed to feel that she had a rival inside the great coach. It was true. Nature never made a more beautiful creation than Manon Leseaut. Her face was fair—the kind that haunted and moved men's souls. Once a man saw her she lived always in his heart. She was truly feminine, yet so deliciously beautiful that she seemed unreal.

As the great bells in the Chapel tower made themselves heard above the rumble of the diligence, Manon suddenly stopped stroking the fluffy white kitten she held in her lap and a shadow fell across her face.

Her elder brother, Andre Lescant, resplendent in the gay uniform of the Guards, watched her narrowly from his spruced-out position on the other side of the diligence.

"What's the trouble, little sister? Are you already turning up your pretty nose at the thought of convent life?" Lescant inquired quizzically.

"No, no, brother dear," Manon hastened to correct him, at the same time trying to control her trembling lips. "My only thought is to do as you wish and not worry you—because you are all I have."

Nevertheless, at the prospect of lonely convent life, Manon buried her face in the great pink bow on her kitten's neck so that her brother, and perhaps the other occupants of the diligence, would not see the tears that came to spite of her efforts to keep them back.

Lescant shrugged his shoulders in utter indifference and settled down in his seat to enjoy the remainder of the journey. The death of his parents had left Manon in his care. She was seventeen and an incubance to his continued pursuit of pleasure if left on his hands in Paris.

Lescant's experience with women was extensive—in one class. He knew only the women who lived by the violence of their desires. Jades exquisite only in their physical appeal. Women who were always ready to play the game of life for however much they could get out of it. A girl of Manon's fine sensibilities was a new creature to him and he treated her as a worthless inheritance to be put out of sight and mind at as small expense as possible.

But it was not destined that all men should consider Manon in the same light.

Until now she had had no contact with the world and its creatures. Her character was as beautiful and pure as her face. She thought the best of everyone and knew nothing of the existence of evil.

Manon's youth and loveliness had unconsciously lured and held the hungry eyes and interest of the third passenger in the diligence. He was Comte De Ravoir, the elegantly dressed and retired Parisian banker whose fifty years on earth had given him time to accumulate a vast fortune and to spend it on women who lavished the fever of their experienced caresses on him in return for money and jewels.

For a long while Comte De Ravoir had been surreptitiously watching Manon, over the top of his book, and his thoughts piled up something like this, "God, what a beauty! Young—untouched! Made and ready to be taught what a woman is for. She will deprive someone of great pleasure if her life is spent in a convent." Ravoir narrowed his small eyes took in every detail of Manon's simple yet exquisitely girlish costume—from her charming floppy leghorn hat, her soft inexpensive gown exposing a perfect neck and arms that would have added to the lustre of precious jewels; down to her daintily united little slippers that extended below the billowy folds of a tiny underskirt.

MISS ALLISON DETAFLAINE, SOCIETY EDITOR.

Travelogue Holds Chief Interest of Church Society

Trinity Lutheran Brotherhood, under the direction of the new official family for the year, 1928, met in regular session in the social rooms on Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The interest at the outset of the new year is quite promising for a big year in the history of the organization.

After the preliminary opening Mr. Joseph Lynch, past commander of the local post of the American Legion and Miss Emma Johnson, advance agent of the U. S. Military band, were introduced. Miss Johnson told of the coming of the band to Circleville on Feb. 1, and solicited the support of the Brotherhood in helping the American Legion to put the proposition over. The Brotherhood pledged its material and moral support to this cause.

Miss Johnson then delighted the audience by impressively singing "Some Time We'll Understand."

After the regular business session, the luncheon committee served "Bob" Drchner's famous country sausage, cheese, dill pickles and coffee.

After the half hour social session, Mr. E. Sengenbrunner gave a travelogue on his last summer's trip to Yellowstone Park and the Pacific Coast, which proved so intensely interesting that the whole evening was taken up and the balance of the regularly assigned program had to be postponed until the next session.

Within a couple months the Brotherhood will be housed in the new Parish House that is nearing completion, which will be another impetus for rapid strides and big successes for the coming year.

Evening Bridge

Mrs. Frank Kline will entertain Monday evening with an evening bridge party at her home on Watt Street.

To Honor Guest

Mrs. George Crites has for her house guest, Miss Dorothy DuPrey of Columbus, in whose honor she will entertain her bridge club Friday evening at her home on South Court Street. Miss DuPrey will remain until Sunday.

Classes to Meet

Members of the adult Sunday school classes of the Methodist Churches of New Holland and Atlanta have been invited to attend a county wide meeting of adult classes in Circleville on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. While no organized plans have been made in these two towns, quite a few individuals will probably attend the meeting.

At Barrere Home

Mrs. William Foreman, Miss Katie Brunner, Miss Grace Moody and Miss Grace Clark assisted at the delightful luncheon-bridge Thursday at 12 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Elger Barrere on West Union Street. Mrs. Howard Jones and Mrs. Hartley Clarke were awarded the prizes at bridge.

In the evening at a six o'clock dinner bridge, the assisting hostesses were Mrs. Tom Drown and Mrs. Charles Weaver, and the prizes were given to Mrs. Turney Weiden and Miss Abbie Clarke.

Dinner Guests

Mrs. Bertha Teegardin and Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Steele, of Circleville, were guests last Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Dresbach in Kingston, where they were entertained with a dinner party.

Celebrates Birthday

In celebration of her husband's fortieth birthday, Mrs. William B. Cady, of South Scioto street, entertained ten of his friends to a six o'clock dinner Thursday evening at their home. The guests were Mr. Walker Baughman, Mr. M. B. Trout, Mr. Charles Radcliff, Mr. Morris Carothers, Mr. W. F. Baker, Mr. R. M. Leach, Mr. R. Z. Myers, Mr. Proctor Baughman, Mr. A. T. Hammel, Mr. H. G. Stevenson and Mr. C. C. Chapplear. After the dinner Mr. Stevenson making an appropriate speech on behalf of the guests, presented Mr. Cary with a smoking set as a birthday gift.

Announce Marriage

Mr. and Mrs. Roy McMullen of West High street, announce the marriage of their daughter, Ursula, to Mr. Harrison Wolfe, on September 22, 1927. Mr. Wolfe is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wolfe, of Kingston. He is associated with the Mead Pulp and Paper Co., in Chillicothe in which town they will go to housekeeping in a short time.

Entertains Club

Mrs. Albert Crist entertained her bridge club Thursday evening at her home on North Court Street. Mrs. Harvey Swoyer received the prize for high score, and the prize for next high score went to an out-of-town guest, Mrs. O. P. Kraft of Sycamore, O.

Guests for Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Underlin, of South Court Street entertained four of their friends Thursday evening to an old fashioned kraut dinner. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. T. O. Gilliland and Mr. and Mrs. Karl Herrmann.

Has Bridge Games

Mrs. L. D. Lutz had two tables of bridge Thursday evening at her home on South Scioto street, when Mrs. Adrian Yates received the trophy for high score.

Guests at Luncheon

Mrs. Ruth McDonald, Mrs. Charles Gilmore and Mrs. Frank Bonnett motored to Washington, C. H., Friday where they were luncheon guests at the home of Mrs. Willard Story.

PERSONALS

Mr. Phillip Neff, Mr. Robert Trimble, Mr. Leo Green and Mr. Harry DeWitt were business visitors in Circleville, Thursday.

Billy, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Carpenter, of Muhlenberg township, is recovering from a tonsil operation performed Wednesday by Dr. C. G. Stewart.

Mrs. Edgar Pross went to Columbus Friday to visit Mrs. Hester Clingan. They will see Al Joson in "The Jazz Singer" at the Grand Theater.

Mrs. John Ryan and daughter, Rita Jean are visiting at the home of Mrs. John English on North Scioto Street.

Mrs. Ralph Boggs, of Pickaway township, went to Newark Friday to visit relatives.

Mr. Ed. Mason, of the Mason Brothers Furniture store, was in Columbus Thursday on business with General Electric company.

Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, of South Pickaway street, has accepted a position in the public schools of New Holland as teacher of the seventh grade, until the end of the school year. In this room classes for two grades had been held because of the large number of pupils, and now Mrs. Johnson will have charge of the seventh grade scholars.

NEW YORK—William Connors, 41, lost both arms and one leg by amputation recently. Then physicians told him they would have to amputate the remaining leg. Connors took their edict philosophical and laughed.

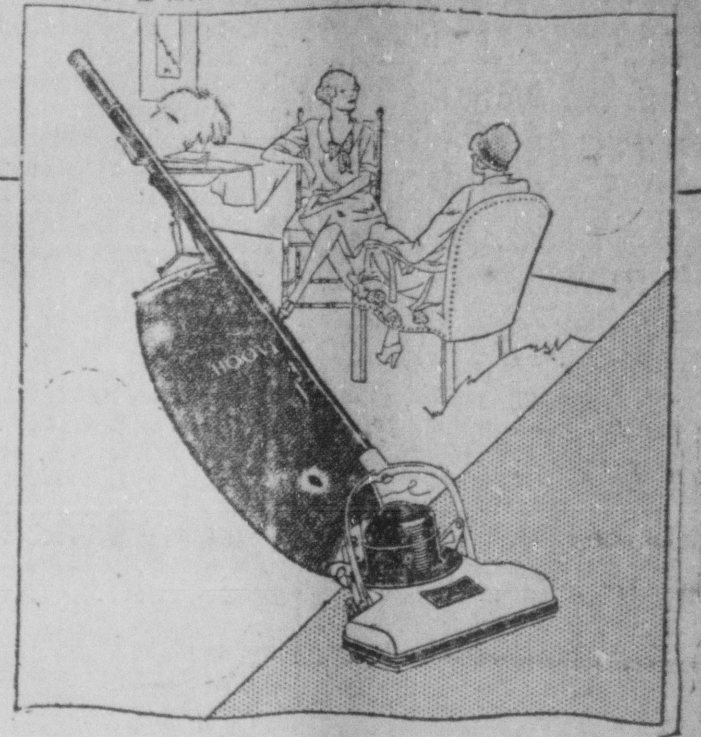

NEW YORK—The huge citadel of St. John the Divine was described as a "mausoleum of the dead past," rather than a place for modern worship, by the Rev. William N. Guthrie, pastor of St. Mark's-in-the-Bouwerie.

NEWARK, N. J.—Dewitt E. Sellick chose to go to jail rather than pay $1.65 poll tax, but later paid it to regain his freedom. Then he sued for $20,000, contending he did not owe the money and his arrest was false.

C. A. C. DOWNED IN FAST CONTEST BY FEDERAL FIVE

CLUB QUINTET IS BEATEN BY 33 TO 30 SCORE

Visitors, Trailing at Half, Spurt Ahead to Give Locals First Defeat.

In one of the fastest games of the season, one of those games that kept the crowd on the edge of their seats every minute, with first one team then the other forging ahead, the Federal Glass five, of Columbus, defeated the C. A. C. boys by a 33 to 30 count, Thursday night.

Although finishing the first half on the short end of a 22 to 17 score, the visitors were undaunted and came back strong, so strong in fact, that they were able to squeeze out victory. But the C. A. C. boys were going too, and even though they lost the game, they need feel no shame, because they went down fighting to the last ball, playing a fast, clean game. A game that was any one's game, with time playing a big factor in it's outcome.

Without doubt Merriman was the outstanding player of the game. His defence work was perfect, and he accounted for 12 of the club's markers. Gatrell also played a fine game and was also responsible for 12 of the club's scores. Had Art Steele been up to form, the Columbus team would have been out of luck. But Art, due to a three day period of illness, was somewhat slowed up.

Lamberton at center, and Kraft at guard, played best for the visitors.

The score:

FLOOR GAMES ARE DIVIDED BY PICKAWAY

Township Basketball Teams Win and Lose in Tilts With Kingston Players.

Pickaway high school girls and boys locked horns with Kingston high on their floor on Wednesday, Jan. 18, and divided the honors of the evening. Pickaway girls won by the score of 11 to 14, while the boys were defeated in a close contest. The final score standing 19 to 20. Kennedy, of Chillicothe, was the referee of both games. Enoch, Smith, and Babb were the principal point getters for Pickaway boys, while Wolford played an important guard position.

The line-up:

IRELAND'S LEADER ARRIVES FOR VISIT

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 —(INS)—William T. Cosgrave, president of the Irish Free State, got his first glimpse of New York this morning. He arrived from Ireland on the liner Homeric, which dropped anchor off quarantine early today. Because of stormy weather, the liner was two days late.

A welcoming committee and a large group of supporters of the Irish Free State were to take President Cosgrave aboard the municipal steamer Macon for a tour of the harbor. He was to be officially received by Mayor Walker at the City hall just before noon.

President Cosgrave then will be taken in charge by a committee from Chicago and headed for the Illinois city at once.

SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY

UNITED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

Ace Hudkins of Nebraska, who recently sat in his corner in a California ring, waiting vainly for Joe Dundee to come to fight him for the welterweight championship, starts all over again tonight to make his way towards the title.

Hudkins meets Lew Tendler, of Philadelphia, as good a trial horse as there is to be found in the 147-pound division, a veteran of memorable, grueling battles with Benny Leonard in the latter's prime as lightweight king.

The Nebraska Wildcat will receive a real test at the capable hands of the Philadelphia Hebrew, but Ace should get by Lew without too much trouble. Then will come a bout with Sergeant Sammy Baker in February, and then, if Hudkins still survives this elimination process now so popular in fistie circles, he will be matched with Dundee once more.

The last time Hudkins was to have met the champion, the latter refused to enter the ring.

A California promoter had guaranteed Dundee $80,000 for the bout, but Joe found out at the last minute what they were going to use for money, and declined to appear.

When the time for the fight arrived, so did Hudkins. The Ace and his seconds climbed through the ropes and busied themselves with the familiar preliminaries, the taping of the hands, and choosing and donning of the gloves, the flexing of the leg muscles and the sucking of a bit of lemon.

But no one came to sit on the opposite stool. Hudkins became nervous, and so did the crowd. Finally the latter rose en masse, tore down the ring, broke the chairs and stormed the box office demanding its money back.

Safely barricaded in a hotel room, Dundee and his manager, Maxy Waxman, remained obdurate. They wanted to take the $80,000, but it had to be in something other than California promises.

So the boxing commission suspended everyone concerned, and that was the end of Hudkins' big opportunity.

Now opportunity gives one of these rare second knocks at the Wildcat's door.

Tex Rickard insists, however, that the Ace must show his ability by bowing over a few of the lesser contenders before being privileged to meet Dundee under the promoter's auspices. Tex pays the boys in real currency, and does his best to extract real fighting in return.

The last time Hudkins fought here, with Col. Lindbergh just back from a brief trip to Paris, looking on, Sergeant Sammy Baker beat the Wildcat to a pulp and lung aside the carcass.

Maybe the fact that "Lindy" came to see him was too much for Ace, but whatever caused it, he was ferribe that night.

Tendler is 30 years old and has been fighting prominent professionals since 1912. He is one of the real veterans of the ring, and while he is past his prime is still a dangerous opponent.

Lew fought a draw with Joe Dundee, the present champion, in 1925.

NORTHWESTERN IS BEATEN BY STATE

Championship Aspirations of Chicago Crew Receive Set-back at Columbus.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 20.—(INS)—It took Ohio State to trip up Northwestern in its triumphant march toward the big ten basketball championship.

The Buckeyes won here last night by the score of 43 to 38. It was Northwestern's first defeat of the season. Incidentally, the result leaves Purdue the only undefeated team in the circuit.

Because they had previously been walloped by Michigan and Wisconsin, the Buckeyes were calculated to be "duck soup" for the tough Northwesterns, the latter having beaten Michigan, Chicago and Iowa.

But such was not the case, and the principal reason was one Captain Bell who sat on the bench during the first half. This period ended with the Wildcats in front, 24 to 22.

While Bell was not the leading scorer, his appearance in the lineup seemed to shatter the Wildcats' confidence, for they promptly "blew up."

Bell scored 8 points; Van Heyde a sub center, accounted for 12 more, but Hinchman, a sophomore guard, topped them all with 14 points. Hinchman was the flashiest player on the floor.

Even a trout would never get caught if it kept its mouth shut.

SHOE MAKERS END STRIKE FOR WAGES

CHICAGO, Jan. 20 — (INS) — Thirteen independent shoe factories here today renewed the 1927 wage scale and 1500 of the 7,500 strikers returned to their benches. The strike was in protest to a wage cut.

Forty-eight factories—12 independent and 36 members of the Manufacturers' Association—continued to refuse to sign the old wage scale. Labor leaders said that the threat by three factories to move was "a bluff."

The Germans are experimenting to find a way of abolishing large sheds for housing Zeppeline airships by constructing them in such a way that, even when deflated, they can remain rigid and able to be moored in the open like an ordinary liner in dock.

In less than twenty-five years, long-distance flying has advanced from the non-stop record made by Wright in 1903 of 825 feet to that of Gnamberlin in 1927 of 3,905 miles.

PENIZEK MEMOIRS PUT NEW LIGHT ON MAYERLING DEATH

VIENNA, Jan. 20 —(INS)— Fresh light is thrown on the famous Mayerling tragedy, in which the Crown Prince Rudolf, an Austrian, is supposed to have murdered Baroness Marie Vetsera, an Austrian girl, and then committed suicide, in the third volume of the memoirs of Herr Penizek, which has just been published here.

Herr Penizek was for many years parliamentary correspondent for the Czech newspaper "Narodni Listy." The writer states that the truth of the Mayerling affair is that Prince Rudolf did not commit suicide, as is generally supposed, but that he was murdered by Baron Baltazzi, Marie's guardian. Penizek gives as his authority Professor Albert, the court physician.

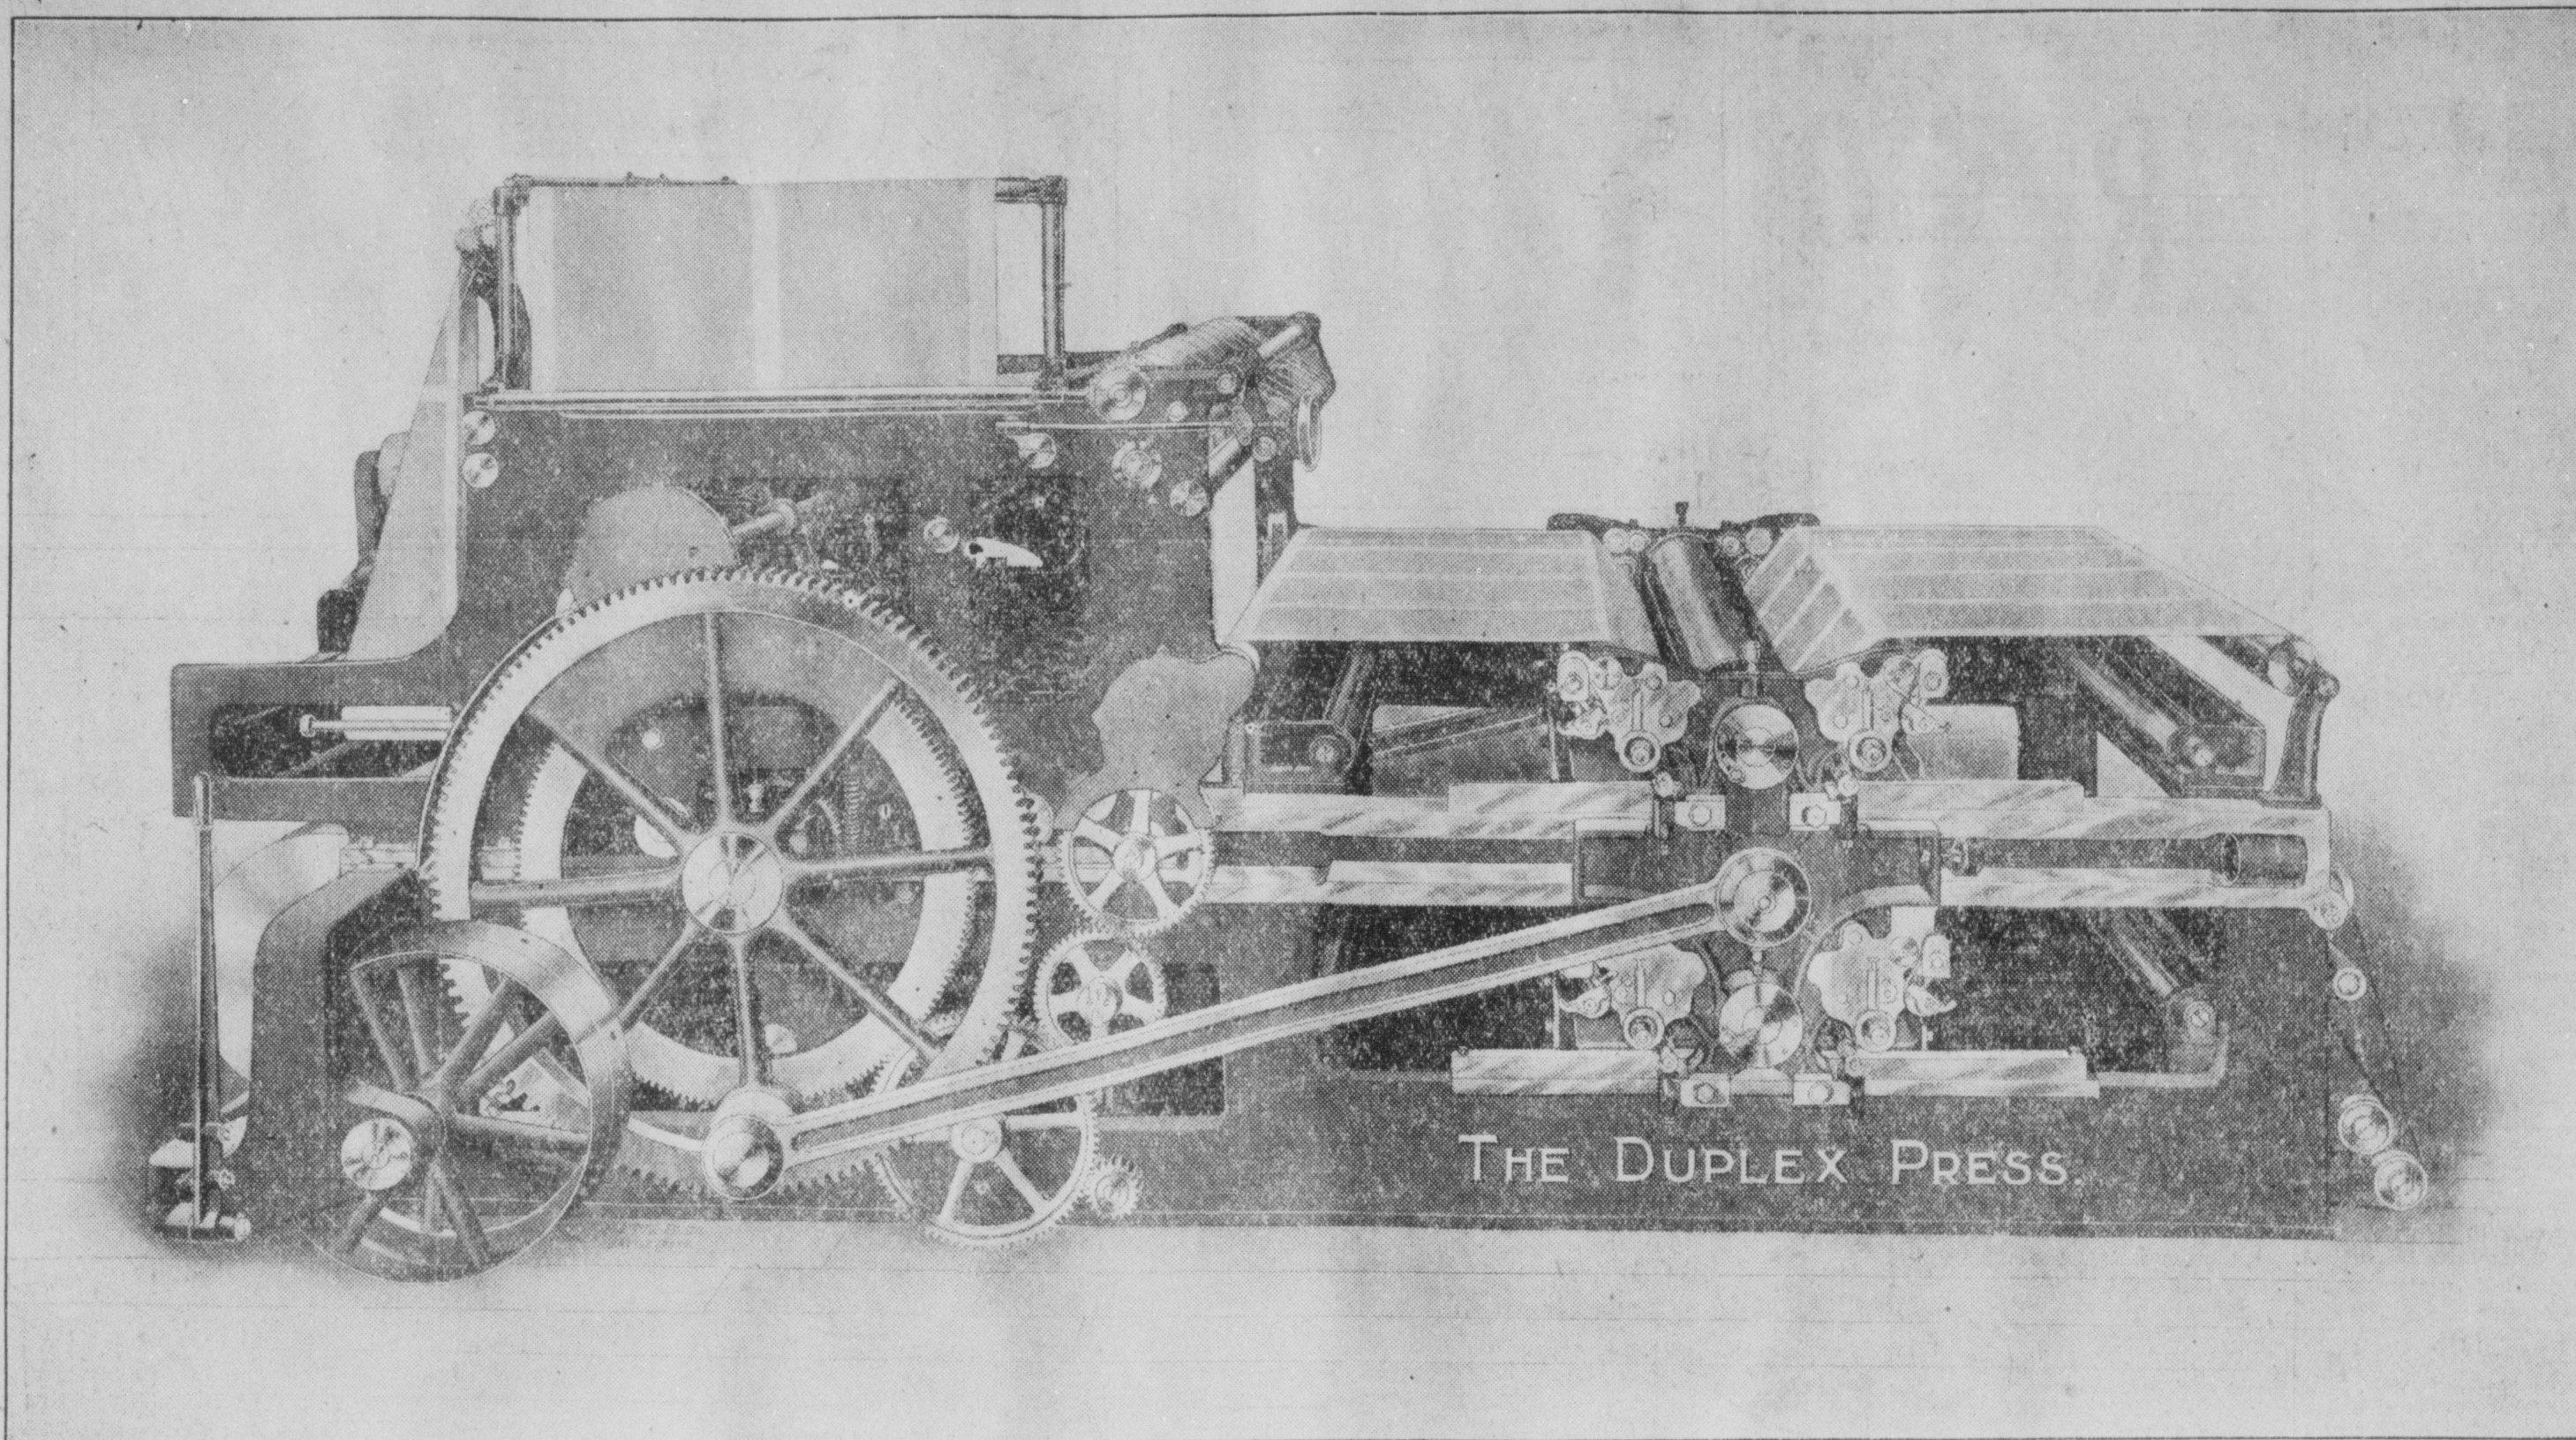

The general idea of the Mayerling tragedy is that Prince Rudolf left Vienna on January 28, 1889 with the Baroness, who was only 17 years old, after a violent quarrel with his father, the Emperor Francis Joseph. They drove in a private facre through the Vienna woods to the hunting lodge of Mayerling.

The next morning, the pair were found dead together. It was assumed the Prince had murdered the girl and then shot himself.

Herr Penizek's story is that Professor Albert came to him the same day, saying: "I have committed the greatest crime possible for a doctor. I have allowed myself to be persuaded to sign a false death certificate stating that Prince Rudolf committed suicide."

Penizek's version states that Baron Baltazzi followed Prince Rudolf and his ward to Mayerling, and accused the Prince of betraying the Young Baroness. After a heated argument, Penizek states, the Baron shot the Prince with a double-barreled shotgun taken from the wall of the hunting lodge, and committed suicide to escape the shame of a public airing of the affair.

Minister's Disclosure of Confession Used Against Girl in Murder Case

BY HENRY LESENE
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
WENTWORTH, N. C. Jan. 20—(INS)—A question involving the sanctity of the relation of priest and penitent threatens to overshadow the main issue in the unique murder trial drama that is docketed to open in Rockingham Superior Court this month.

It is the case of Mrs. Alma Petty Gatlin, pretty girl-wife of Eugene Gatlin, fire chief of Reidsville, who will face trial for her life, accused of the gruesome axe-murder of her 50-year-old father, Smith T. Petty, a cotton mill foreman.

The patricide charge against the youthful Reidsville girl is based on the statement to authorities by Rev. Thomas F. Pardue, erstwhile Reidsville minister-evangelist, that she confessed the ghastly crime to him during a religious ecstasy.

Preacher's Testimony

That the prosecution will base its case largely on the testimony of the Reidsville minister-evangelist has been clearly indicated by Solicitor Allen Gwyn, to whom Rev. Pardue told his story, resulting in the discovery of Petty's axe-hacked body buried in the basement of the Petty home, after he had been mysteriously missing for more than a year.

Never in North Carolina jurisprudence has a court been asked to pass upon the competency of such evidence as the evangelist turned over to the county prosecutor in a trial that involved the life of the defendant.

The prosecution, in revealing that it would place the minister on the stand to tell his story, said it knew of no statute in North Carolina which would throw out the testimony of the minister between the minister and the alleged penitent.

But this issue, whether or not it brings forth a preliminary skirmish for the life of the girl-bride defendant when the trial gets under way the week of January 23, it will, it is expected, create no little controversial discussions in circles outside the courtroom.

Opinion Divided

That such very likely will be the case already has been indicated in this section recently, when various ministerial and lay bodies took decided stands on the issue, condemning or lauding the evangelist.

for "turning up" the alleged murderers.

Rev. Pardue's own congregation backed him up on his action. Several evangelistic audiences and ministerial associations at the time went on record as being opposed to the act of the minister. At any rate the matter is still a lively topic for street-corner conversationists hereabouts as the date of the trial draws near.

The story of the alleged confession, which the defendant steadfastly maintains was never made, was related by the minister in words to the following effect:

"It was after services one night in April that Alma came to me and asked to speak with me alone. We proceeded up into the choir loft, and she asked me: 'What chance have I to be saved if I have murdered someone?'"

"Alma, you don't mean that!" I said. 'You haven't killed anyone.'

"Yes, I have," she replied. 'I want to know if I can be saved.'

Her "Confession"

"I then told her to return to her home, and that I would see her again. Next day I invited her to have dinner with me, and that evening, before the next service, she told me the story."

The "story" was this, according to the minister: Mrs. Gatlin murdered her father in March of last year. He had been believed to be missing for more than a year, but authorities fearing no foul play, had not investigated.

She killed her father, Mrs. Gatlin is alleged to have confessed, one morning as she prepared his breakfast after his all-night drunken debauch had kept her mother, who was ill at the time, from sleeping. Enraged at her father's conduct, the confession runs, she on impulse struck him over the head with an axe, and as he lay in a dazed condition on the floor, taunted him with her previous threat of "I'll kill you some day!" before delivering the fatal blow.

Authorities, after hearing Mrs. Gatlin's alleged confession, went to the home she formerly occupied and found Petty's body buried in the basement. The same day Mrs. Gatlin was arrested and charged with the crime. She protested she did not make the alleged confession credited to her by the minister.

REAL "WILD WEST" FOUND IN HUNGARY; UNDER TRIBAL RULE

LONDON, Jan. 20—(INS)—A European mystery land is discovered—a great Wild West "more romantic and more uncivilized than the ones shown by a thousand American films."

Open spaces roamed by cattle and wild horses, inhabited by cowboys of a thousand years ago—open spaces wild and dangerous lying a desert no-man's land in the heart of Central Europe's broiling nations—this is the land which has recently been discovered to the western world. Towards the borders of Hungary it lies "only a few hours journey from Budapest."

Cowboys (Chicos they are called) wear black "ten-gallon" hats with brims broad and curled. Long riding boots reaching almost to the knee they have and skirts plaited and divided like Buffalo Bill's Western "chaps." The roughish silk scarf of the American cowboy the Chico replaces with a red, blue and green embroidered mantle thrown rakishly as a cloak over his shoulder. The pipe this warrior carries is one resembling the Indian's long clay pipe of peace.

The Chico rides his horse saddleless—but with a blanket thrown across the animal's back. The blanket is ungirthed and to its sides stirrup straps are attached. Around the pony's neck the lariat is wound. (The chico is never without this). A single movement—a jerk of the hand—and the lariat is loosened and ready for action.

No six shooter for weapon—but a whip the chico has with a "phenominally long lash." He uses this with trained skill on offense and on defence. He can catch and bind a pig, sheep or other small animal at will with his whip. A savage cast and the lash coils about the animal's body.

The Chico's live on their "no-man's land" for life. They live in camps and the camps lie distances apart. They are somewhat "open air camps" for their huts are only partly roofed.

UNITED STATES GAINS GROUND IN CONFERENCE

Avowed Opponents of Yankee Policies Receive Right of Way at Havana.

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
HAVANA, CUBA, Jan. 20.—The threatened Latin-American insurrection against the Latin-American policy of the United States appeared today to be pretty well squelched. Yeoman diplomatic work has been accomplished by the American delegation since its arrival in Havana to deal with the sixth Pan-American conference. As a result of this work, the conference swung into the committee stage today with most of the opposition elements in a friendly mood.

Mexico's delegation, for example, is so friendly that Ambassador Dwight Morrow is returning to his post in Mexico City this week-end. Nobody believes that Ambassador Morrow would leave vacant his chair in this Pan-American conference and return to Mexico City if there was any likelihood of Mexico's upsetting the international apple cart at Havana.

Hughes Saves Day
Similarly with other threatened controversies, Charles Evans Hughes, who admittedly is the outstanding international figure in the conference, graciously declined to serve as chairman of either of the most important committees of the conference—those leading with the codification of public international law and with the future status of the Pan-American Union.

Mr. Hughes pleaded that his duties as chairman of the American delegation would prevent his giving adequate time to the work of the committees. And instead of Mr. Hughes accepting the honors himself, he nominated for chairman of the international law committee Dr. Gustavo Guerrero of Salvador, who has been among the most vigorous of critics of United States policy in Nicaragua and through Central America generally.

Dr. Guerrero Pleased
Dr. Guerrero was highly pleased by the compliment of being chosen the chairman of the most important committee of the conference. It is this committee that will have to deal with the question of whether under international law the United States has or has not "invaded" Nicaragua by the dispatch of thousands of marines to occupy the towns and insure a "free election" next year.

The first chairmanship of committee which Mr. Hughes refused was that of the Pan-American Union. This is an important committee for no other reason than that some of the smaller countries of Latin-America are insisting that the union be removed from the category of an international debating society and given power to supervise such things as the present American military occupation of Nicaragua.

The chairmanship was given to Enrique Olaya, of Colombia, who, within his diplomatic limits, has not entirely approved of American diplomacy in Nicaragua and elsewhere in Latin-America.

SEARCH NEW YORK FOR MISSING GIRL

NEW YORK—Jan. 20.—(INS)—The search for Miss Frances St. John Smith, 18-year-old student who vanished from Smith college a week ago, swung back to New York City today with the arrival here of her brother, St. John Smith Jr., and a private detective. Their hurried trip from Northampton, Mass., where the search was centered, stirred rumors that Frances was being held captive by abductors waiting for a further increase in the $10,000 reward offered by the girl's father. Another report was that the young student has sought seclusion in a thickly populated neighborhood where she was likely to remain unrecognized.

SMITH BARRED IN TAKING HIS JOB IN SENATE

New "Unwritten Law" Established as Members of Upper House Take Action.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(IN S)—A new "unwritten law," barring from the senate men elected through the expenditure of great campaign funds, was drying on the statute books today as a result of the senate's action in excluding Frank L. Smith (R.) of Illinois.

For the first time in its history, the senate denied a seat to a senator-elect holding legal credentials, on the ground that excessive campaign expenditures tainted his election with "fraud and corruption." In excluding Smith, the senate formally endorsed the "rule" laid down in the old Newberry case six years ago, that heavy campaign expenditures invalidated an election.

The vote ousting Smith was so overwhelming it surprised even his opposition. It was 61 to 23, with twenty-one Republicans, one farm-laborer and thirty-nine Democrats voting against him, while two Democrats and twenty-one Republicans voted for him.

LAX DOG OWNERS TO BE GIVEN FINES

County Auditor Bryce Briggs will impose a penalty of $1 on owners of dogs, who have not taken out licenses, beginning Friday. So far 2,400 dog licenses have been sold. Last year 2,800 were sold. The auditor says that there are at least 3,600 dogs here and that every seventh person owns a dog in this city. Last year 800 dogs were not licensed, but this year the dog catcher will visit every home in the county.

CLOTHING IS BEING SOUGHT FOR CHILDREN

Circleville National Guard Officers Announce Collection Dates in County.

Addresses by Circleville officers of the Ohio National Guard will be part of the Pickaway county program for obtaining money, clothing and food for starving children in the mining district of Ohio.

This line of activity was decided upon by the National Guard officers of Circleville, Thursday night in accordance with the proclamation of Governor Donahey, who has called upon the citizens of Ohio to aid the children, and who designated the National Guard units as the receiving agents.

Lieut. Col. Harry D. Jackson presided at the meeting of the officers and Lieut. Joseph Lynch acted as recorder.

Arrange Addresses
It was decided to make an appeal through the public schools of the county for clothing. Arrangements were made to have an officer address each of the schools, explaining the needs of the miners' children. They will ask that those desiring to donate clothing bring it to the school buildings where it will be collected by an army truck.

Persons who have no children in the schools are asked to send their contributions to the Armory or to place them on their porches where they will be collected by the guardsmen.

The schedule of collection of contributions will be as follows: Schools east of the Scioto river on Thursday, Jan. 26.

Schools west of the river on Friday, Jan. 27.

In Circleville, homes and schools, on Thursday, Jan. 26, beginning at 9 a. m.

Money is Welcome
Attention is called to the fact that the clothing donated should be of sizes suitable for children up to 16 years of age. Layettes are also badly needed.

Money will be very welcome and may be given to any National Guard officer who will transmit it to the proper destination. The state secretary of the treasury will handle all money and the state auditor will audit all accounts in the relief campaign.

The Circleville officers of the Ohio National Guard who are authorized to act as agents are: Lieut. Col. Jackson; Capt. Charles S. Gusman, Capt. Austin W. Holman, Capt. Lloyd Jones, Lieut. Frank Littleton, Lieut. John A. Ryan and Lieut. Lynch.

WILL OF IOWAN IS FILED IN COUNTY

An authenticated copy of the will of Harold G. Ebert of Polk county, Iowa, has been filed in the probate court of Pickaway county. The estate, which is estimated at $3,200, is located in Ashville. The real property is bequeathed to an aunt, Mrs. Fredericka Gerhardt, living near this city, and a cousin, Charles Ebert, of Ashville. The latter is also given all the personal property of the deceased. The will was witnessed by D. H. Ebert and A. B. Shawver.

COOLIDGE SENDS HIS GOOD WISHES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(I NC)—President Coolidge today sent a telegram of congratulations to Emperor Hirohito, on the betrothal of Prince Chichibu, brother of the emperor of Japan, and his presumptive bride, the daughter of the Japanese ambassador in Washington. The wedding is to take place in Tokyo probably in September.

Modern New Press Issues This Edition of The Circleville Herald

Mammoth Machine Prints, Cuts and Folds Newspapers at Rate of 6500 an Hour—Public Is Invited to Visit Plant and See Fast Press in Operation.

With this issue The Circleville Herald presents its new and larger paper printed on its new and larger press, installation of which was completed last night.

The machine, a Duplex press, is the latest model of its type and prints as high as 6,500 newspapers per hour, with ease, an eight-column sheet. It is composed of approximately 2,000 parts and weighs around 14 tons.

The new press is manufactured by the Duplex Printing Press company of Battle Creek, Michigan, one of the largest printing press factories in the world. J. H. Nord, expert machinist, erected the new press in The Circleville Herald's building, working day and night that Circleville and Pickaway county might have its new and larger, eight-column paper delivered to them today.

Realizing that the reading public of The Circleville Herald merited a real newspaper one that Circleville and Pickaway county can point to with pride and one that will serve to better this community in which we all live, The Circleville Publishing Company at a cost of thousands of dollars purchased the latest model and fastest press for the purpose of issuing a real newspaper.

The Duplex Web Perfecting press is a marvel of mechanical skill and the many functions it performs in one operation are interesting to watch. The huge roll of paper goes in at one end and a moment later comes forth a newspaper, printed and folded ready for delivery. If unrolled, this single roll of paper would reach a distance of three miles. Four pages of this paper are printed on one side and four on the other.

Entering the folder, after it is printed, the press folds, cuts and trims the paper and passes it out, the finished product, in a chute, ready for the newsboy. Four, six and eight pages can be printed in this manner.

The new press is driven by a 10-horsepower motor.

The eight-column page gives The Circleville Herald a metropolitan appearance, being of the same size as the big city dailies, and supplies a chance for the better display of news and advertising. The clear, sharp impression and the perfect printing is also of immense importance to the advertiser as well as the reader.

The public of this city and county is invited to inspect this new press and to see it in operation. The press starts running at 3 o'clock each afternoon. Earlier delivery to the homes in the city will now be made.

ILL FROM FOOD

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 20.—(UP)—A banquet attendant to ceremonial exercises and initiation of candidates into a chemical society at Waite high school here nearly resulted tragically as five persons today were suffering ill effects from food eaten.

COLD WEATHER ARRIVES AFTER WIND AND RAIN

Utilities Companies Suffer Biggest Loss in County During Storm.

Cold weather followed Friday in the wake of the rain and wind which visited Pickaway county, Thursday.

Snow flurries Friday morning were succeeded by bright sunshine, which failed, however, to have any appreciable effect on the low temperature.

Most of the damage in Thursday's storm was suffered by the utilities companies and their patrons.

Electric light and power in Circleville was off for an hour Thursday afternoon as the result of a short circuit at Bell's Siding of lines of the Ohio Utilities company and the Scioto Valley Traction company.

Two poles, carrying 33,000 volt lines of the Ohio Utilities company, were blown down eight miles south of Circleville. Minor damage resulted when service lines in Circleville were damaged by the storm.

The traction company had several poles blown down, but the carrier's service was interrupted for only 15 minutes by the mishaps.

In Circleville and vicinity no trouble was experienced by the Citizens Telephone company. East of Ashville, however, 16 poles were blown down, putting 100 rural telephones out of commission and stopping service over some of the toll lines for a short time.

DINNER PLANNED BY BROTHERHOOD

Nurse that appetite!
It will be needed for the annual baked ham dinner with which the Brotherhood of the Methodist church observes Washington's Birthday.

The arrangements for the dinner were announced Friday by George Fitzpatrick, president of the brotherhood. It will be served Wednesday evening, Feb. 22, at the Methodist church, beginning at 5 o'clock.

In the past these dinners have been very popular and this year the tickets have been limited to 500. The sale of the tickets is now being conducted by members of the brotherhood.

House Members Are Reported
Flocking to Plan—Equalization Fee Left Out.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(UP)—Passage by the house of a compromise farm relief bill which President Coolidge will sign instead of the disputed McNary-Haugen measure with its equalization fee, appears probable as a result of the last few days' developments.

It was predicted freely today that the house agriculture committee would report out a bill lacking the equalization fee to which the administration objects, and that a majority of McNary-Haugen bill supporters would vote for such a measure on the floor.

Maneuvered into the delicate position of standing for a measure that apparently has no chance of presidential approval, supporters of the McNary-Haugen bill are asking themselves whether it would not be better to work out a compromise that would mean some relief rather than get no legislation at all.

Revolt Spreading
To prevent deliberate creation small way in the agriculture committee, seemed today to be spreading, despite efforts of farm leaders to hold their ranks in line.

A probable compromise is along the lines of the Curtis-Crisp bill which is understood to have administration support. This would set up financing corporations for each crop having a surplus, with power to buy up this surplus in the open market and hold it for better prices.

To prevent deliberate creation of surpluses, the measure prohibits operation of the machinery for a second year surplus if that surplus is caused by increased acreage. The machinery would continue functioning if the second surplus resulted from natural beneficial conditions. The Curtis-Crisp bill was defeated in the house committee last session by only one vote.

Farm Bureau in Line
The Farm Bureau Federation and other farm organizations favoring the McNary-Haugen bill will continue to support it, it is believed. Chester H. Gray, legislative representative of the Farm Bureau, has declined to give way, pointing out he is powerless in the face of the organization's mandate.

Political observers today expressed the view that rejection of the McNary-Haugen bill by congress in favor of a compromise measure would help rather than hinder the presidential movement of Ex-Governor Frank O. Lowden, Illinois, who endorses the bill. They say it would produce a grievance and therefore an issue.

If the McNary-Haugen measure is dropped, some Democrats will attack farm Republicans on the ground that their action is governed by political expediency in this presidential year, it was learned today.

CORDELL HULL ENTERS FIGHT FOR PRESIDENT

Former Democratic National Chairman Endorsed by His Home State.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (INS)—Rep. Cordell Hull of Tennessee, former Democratic national chairman, was presented to the nation today as the south's latest candidate for the presidency.

Hull was entered in the race by the unanimous endorsement of the Tennessee delegation in congress. He may make a formal announcement later.

Putting him forward as a "harmony candidate," the Tennessee delegation spokesmen emphatically denied that Hull was being proposed as a favorite son or a stalking horse to check-mate any candidate now in the field.

A veteran of nearly 20 years in congress, Hull achieved his greatest national prominence as the party's chairman from 1921 to 1924.

OHIO CHECKING ON DAMAGE BY SEVERE STORM

CINCINNATI, Jan. 20 (INS)—Ohio was checking today on the devastation wrought by a tornado-like storm that swept through the southern part of the state late yesterday.

One person is known to have been killed. Property damage is estimated at close to a million dollars.

The freak storm cut across the Kentucky line and carried destruction into the interior of that state. A score of persons were reported injured in the Louisville district. No fatalities occurred, but property damage was high.

The greatest destruction from the gale in Ohio was suffered by Cumminsville, a suburb of Cincinnati. A number of homes and a school house were blown down at Lindenwald, O. Several school children received minor injuries.

A. R. Kruger, a Dayton, Ohio, salesman, was killed at Washington, C. H., when the cornice of a building was loosened by the wind and fell into his automobile.

HICKMAN ILL. SANITY TESTS RESPONSIBLE

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Jan. 20 (UP)—William Edward Hickman, slayer of Marion Parker, was ill in his cell today, physicians said, as an aftermath to spinal punctures made by alienists searching for traces of insanity.

Dr. Benjamin Blank, jail physician, declared Hickman had "a fairly heavy pulse, some fever and considerable pain." He scoffed at reports that the slayer might contract spinal meningitis.

"His reaction," Blank said, "is a natural one and he probably will not fully recover until Saturday."

EL PASO, Tex., Jan. 20 (UP)—Thomas Hickman, father of Edward Hickman, Los Angeles slayer who goes to trial next week, was en route to Los Angeles today to aid his son.

The father is expected to testify that he believes the son is afflicted with hereditary insanity, inherited from his mother, who once spent a term in an asylum.

London Soon to Have High Lunatic Percentage

LONDON, Jan. 20—(INS)—London is in a fair way to becoming the city having the most lunatics in the world.

A report on mental deficiency in the city prepared by the London county council shows that while more people are being certified as insane in London every year the percentage of those who recover is decreasing.

The total number of London lunatics under the care of public institutions has risen from 16,362 in 1880 to 24,863 in 1927.

TEN RULES OF FINANCE GIVEN TO ROTARIANS

Columbus Banker Advises Investment in Sound Securities—Singer Is Heard

Ten financial commandments of thrift were given to members of the Rotary club at their noonday luncheon in the Boggs hotel, Thursday, by Avery G. Clinger, vice president of the Columbus Trust and Savings bank, his talk being timely, due to the fact that this is National "Thrift Week."

Prior to his address, Rotarian E. A. Brown, chairman of this month's entertainment committee, introduced Miss Emma Johnson, advance agent for the United States army band which will play here Wednesday, Feb. 1, under the auspices of the Howard Hall Post, American Legion. The Legionnaires, she said, had brought the huge band to Circleville—the smallest of the 44 cities in which it will play on its first tour, authorized by the War Department—at a large expense, and she asked the Rotarians and citizens generally support the concert which will be given in the afternoon and evening of the date mentioned.

Miss Johnson also played and sang several delightful solos, which were enthusiastically received.

thrift, outlined by the Columbus banker, were listed as follows:

1. Work and earn.
2. Live on a budget.
3. List expenditures.
4. Have a bank account.
5. Pay your bills promptly.
6. Buy life insurance.
7. Make a will.
8. Own your own home.
9. Invest surplus funds in sound securities.
10. Share with others.

In the last commandment, Mr. Clinger said: Do not live solely for yourself. Carry others along with you when you are successful. Share your good luck."

Investment Advice

In regard to investing, he said after you had bought your own home, life insurance, and made a will, if any surplus was left, to invest it in sound securities. Whether these securities are sound or not can be determined by consulting your banker or a reliable investment and bond house. Payment of bills promptly establishes credit, he said, urging also that the individual make contact with a bank and bankers by making deposits and enjoying friendly relationship.

Announcement was made that Fred Brunner, Oscar Howard, Fred C. Clark and Arthur Wilder had contributed bed sheets, pillow slips and coverings for the three hospital beds, the beds having been donated by Press Enderlin, John Ryan and the Rotary club, three in all. Rotarian Frank Lynch also donated rubber sheeting for the three beds which were presented free to the local hospital.

Rotarians voted to move their Jan. 31 meeting up a day, Feb. 1, so that officers of the U. S. band might provide entertainment for them.

32 FARMERS STUDY RECORDS FOR YEAR

Biggest "Summary School" Is Conducted by O. S. U. Specialists.

Complete accounts for 32 Franklin county farms were checked and summarized, early this month, in what was probably the largest summarizing school ever held. The reports were analyzed by the specialists of the Rural Economics Department of the Ohio State university. Twenty-two of the records were brought in by the farm owners themselves, and the remaining 10 by Smith-Hughes students who have kept records on their farmers' farms, as a part of their agricultural educational projects.

One of the men has kept complete records of his farm work for seven years, three for six years, two for five years. Several of them have discovered profit leaks and inefficient practices on their farms, through the keeping of the accounts, and have made or will make changes in their farm methods as a result.

This year four schools have been held for farmers who propose to begin keeping accounts, and three more such schools have been scheduled by the specialists.

The records summarized at the "summary" school are now being analyzed by the marketing specialists at the university and are expected to yield valuable information on Franklin county farm practices.

New Stories Told In Volume on Life of Hans Anderson

LONDON, Jan. 20 (INS) Hitherto unpublished details of the life of Hans Christian Anderson, the Danish story-teller whose fairy tales have been loved by children the world over for generations, are contained in a new biography which is attracting great attention here.

The volume—"Hans Anderson, the Man," contains many revelations regarding the life of the weaver of fairy tales, and delves deep into his tragic love affair with Jenny Lind, the famous Swedish singer. The book reveals that although Anderson won the hearts of children of the world through his work, he could never induce a woman to be his wife, and died an unhappy bachelor.

Although he was attracted by many women, the biography says, he gave his heart only to Jenny Lind and remained true to her all his life, even though she would not marry him. He made every effort to win her love. She went about with him, entertained him in her home, and was happy to be with him—but only as a friend.

The writer seeks to find the reason that all Anderson's efforts to win himself a wife proved futile. Some contemporaries said that his personal appearance defeated his long for a wife and a cozy home. He was immensely tall and awkward, and in a poem of his youth

he compared himself to a "scarecrow in a field."

Artificial Silk Is Called Bright Spot In British Industry

LONDON, Jan. 20 (INS)—Artificial silk probably provides the brightest spot in British industry at the present moment.

Latest figures show rapid and continuous progress. During the first nine months of 1927 27,450,019 pounds of artificial silk were produced in the United Kingdom as against 18,755,422 pounds during the first three-quarters of this year was actually larger than the whole of last year's production, which came to 25,487,551 pounds. It is expected that the total production for this year will amount to about 36,500,000 pounds, an increase of about 45 per cent on 1926.

LONDON BANK ELECTS

LONDON, O., Jan. 20—Officers and directors of the Madison National Bank were elected as follows: President, P. R. Emery; F. R. Bridgman, vice president; W. T. Booth, cashier; Miss Faye Miller, teller; Miss Ercel Miller, bookkeeper. Directors are F. R. Bridgman, W. T. Booth, Mrs. Minnie Cheseldine, James R. Coppins, P. R. Emery, L. J. The New Circleville Herald

Today The Circleville Herald comes to you in a new dress.

It is the zero hour, the moment we, here in The Herald office, have all been waiting and hoping for.

An eight-column, city-size newspaper that compares very favorably with any other newspaper in the country in a city under 15,000. New features, too.

Probably you've enjoyed "Bringing Up Father," "Just Kids," Dr. Copeland's health talk, the society column or the sport page, the editorials or "The Rambler," the daily editorial cartoon or the telegraph news.

All these features have been added to The Circleville Herald in the past month. But more are coming, as you will note by these new departments, and new features, you will find in The Circleville Herald today. All of this is just a part of the expansion program that is planned for the people of Circleville and Pickaway county with an aim to giving them the best newspaper they ever had.

And in return all that we ask is a measure of support, a measure of fairness, a measure of kindness, without malice and with a vow that you'll be for your home town and your home town newspaper. Then we'll try and do the rest.

All Can Help

The progress of a community does not depend merely on the enterprise and activity of its leading business men and organizations.

Every clerk who works in a store, every mechanic in his factory, every farmer in his field, every housewife in her home, each one has some effect on the future of that community.

If the salesman is actively pushing for new patronage and to please old customers, he helps the city's retail business to grow. If the mechanic is efficient, he assists his employer to sell more goods. If the farmer is diligent and scientific, he adds to the resources of the neighborhood. If the housewife improves the home place, she promotes the city's reputation for culture and finish. We all have to do our share, to secure the development of Circleville.

Investigating the Submarines

Every family that has a boy in submarine service will be pleased by the position taken by President Coolidge and Secretary Wilbur, that there should be a sweeping investigation by competent experts, of the recent sinking of the submarine S-4, which should also consider possible safety devices for the submarine vessels now in commission.

The tragic fate of the S-4 touched the hearts of the nation. Our people want no more such tragedies to happen, if human skill and science can devise some methods of avoiding them.

The attention of the whole country has been drawn to the methods by which submarine service can be protected and out of the thousands of suggestions made, there must seemingly be some that would be effective. These men who in behalf of their country go down to this weird position at the bottom of the sea, are entitled to all that technical science can do to make their enterprise a reasonably safe one.

And then, instead of Being sad,
My heart will be Just twice as Glad,
We cannot always
Own today
The things for which
We seldom pray;
Today we're building
To an end
That's just beyond
The next great

Today we plan our

And start foundations
In the sand,
Today a hundred
Goals are sought
But only one,
Perhaps, is bought;
And so it goes,
We dream today
And plan our paths
Along the way,

And what we mean to say
Is,
Just go ahead and dream
Your dreams
This drab old life
Then never seems
Quite half as weary,
Half as cruel,
And what if others call
You "Fool!"

Who'll Work With His Hands?

The schools are turning out an unlimited number of bosses, managers, directors, superintendents, foremen, go-getters, also salesmen, bookkeepers, clerks, etc. Meanwhile there is a shortage of people who will take hold with their hands and do work calling for muscle.

This disparity will probably increase, judging by figures given out by the National Industrial Conference Board, which finds that the number of unskilled workers who returned to Europe since 1924, is three times as many as those who came thence to the United States. Perhaps many of these people were disappointed when they found they could not pick up gold in our streets.

The man with the hoe and the pick is needed. There is an equal demand for the one who can swing a carpenter's hammer, a bricklayer's trowel, or a house painter's brush. Many who practice these trades are driving sniny automobiles, while clerks and bookkeepers are walking.

Anyone should be glad to shake hands cordially with the man in overalls, and be glad to walk down town with him. The fellow who can mix paint so it will stick or who can fix the chimney so it won't smoke, has practical views of life. We can all learn from him.

We should pay high respect to the farmer. As an owner of land, he has a position of substantial dignity. When we give due social honors to such people, more boys will see that these callings are desirable.

Infatuations

Under the smooth and polite surface of the modern community, hot emotions are seething, and many of them threaten dangerous explosions.

Many men and women become possessed by irrational infatuations for persons of the opposite sex. Girls fall violently in love with vicious men, won by the sweet and mannerly ways such fellows know how to assume in their company. And men will get infatuated with girls who will never give loyal devotion to any husband.

And if their friends argue with these folks, they angrily declare that these unworthy flames are paragons of excellence. Love is blind to be blind. Oculists and opticians find it extremely difficult to fit him with spectacles.

Knowing folks say that the victims of these sentimental contagions need some new interest to divert their minds. The baby cries for the moon, but if you give him a powerful new tin horn, the moon ceases to be essential to his happiness.

Similarly many young people recovered from their attacks of calf love when they got interested in some new athletic sport, or obtained a new job that occupied their entire attention. It is claimed that young people can't help falling in love, but it is well not to swim any deep divers before you have learned how to keep afloat.

It is claimed the American home is breaking down. It is surely in danger of doing so if they dance the modern dances on the parlor floor.

There is a movement for revision of the calendar, but it won't be popular unless it makes pay day come oftener, and rent day not so often.

CHAPTER XI

I ARRIVED at Brooks Field on March 15, 1924, but was not enlisted as a flying cadet until March 19. Ordinarily a cadet enlists at the nearest station to his home and is given free transportation to his post of service and back to the enlistment point after his discharge. By enlisting at Brooks I was entitled to no transportation allowance, except, possibly, bus fare back from Kelly, where I graduated a year later.

There were 104 of us in all, representing nearly every State in the Union. We filled the cadet barracks to overflowing. There were two cots to each window and some of us were even quartered in the recreation hall. We were a carefree lot, looking forward to a year of wonderful experiences before we were graduated as second lieutenants and given our wings. Nearly all of us were confident that we would be there to graduate a year later. We had already passed the rigid physical and mental entrance examinations in which so many of the other applicants had failed. We had no doubt of our ability to fly, although most of us had never flown before and we had yet to get our first taste of the life of a flying cadet.

By the time we had been in the barracks a few hours stories began circulating around which originated from conversations with the last class of cadets who were waiting to be transferred to the advanced flying school at Kelly.

Rumors of "Benzine Boards" and "wash-outs," "academic work" and "eight-hour examinations," one and "eight-hour" examinations, "one eighty's," and "check pilots," "walls with ears" and "cadet etiquette"—these and a hundred other strange terms were condescendingly passed down to us by the old cadets of six months experience. Someone remarked that less than forty per cent of us could expect to finish the primary training at Brooks and that probably half of those would be washed out at Kelly.

By bed check that night we had already begun to feel the apprehension which is part of a flying cadet's life from his first day at Brooks until he has received his pilot's wings at Kelly.

Our actual flying training was to begin on the first of April. Two weeks were required to become organized and learn the preliminary duties of a cadet. During these two weeks we were inoculated against typhoid and small-pox at the hospital, taught the rudiments of cadet etiquette, given fatigue duty, required to police the grounds surrounding our barracks, inspected daily, and instructed and given examinations in five subjects. In our spare time we were allowed to look around the post or take the bus to San Antonio, provided, however, that we were back in bed not later than ten o'clock on Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights. At all other times we could stay out as late as we desired.

When we did have a few spare moments in the afternoon, they were usually spent in trying to

"chizzle" a hop from one of the instructors on the line.

Early one morning we were allowed to take the training ships out and push them to the line for the old cadets to fly. But when one of the planes nosed over after eight husky rookies heaved up on the hundred and fifty pound tail, it was decided to put us to work moving hydrogen cylinders for a balloon ascension.

As the first of April approached we were looking forward to the start of actual flying with great anticipation. Coupled with this was the anxiety of waiting for the returns from our examination papers, the failure of any two of which would be sufficient cause for their owner to be washed out from the courses.

The flying instruction was carried on from two stages or different sections of the field. I was assigned to B stage, which was about a half-mile out in the field from the cadet barracks. Each instructor had about six cadets assigned to him, and early in the morning on the first day of April our instruction commenced. I was assigned to Sergeant Winston, together with five other cadets. We pushed his instruction plane out from the hangar to the line. Sergeant Winston picked out one of us, told him to get into the rear cockpit and was off. The rest of us walked over to B stage, watching for tarantulas along the road on the way.

In 1924, the Curtiss Jenny was still used by the army for a training plane, although the 90 H. P. Curtiss OX-5 engines had been replaced by 150 H. P. Hispano-Suizas. The more modern types of planes for training were still in the experimental stage. The Jennies had been designed during the war and they were becoming obsolete, but it is doubtful whether a better training ship will ever be built, although undoubtedly the newest type is much safer. Jennies were underpowered; they were somewhat tricky and they splintered badly when they crashed hard; but when a cadet learned to fly one of them—well, he was just about capable of flying anything on wings with a reasonable degree of safety.

I had been particularly fortunate in my assignment of an instructor. Sergeant Winston, held the record for flying time in the army with about thirty-three hundred hours. He was an excellent pilot, and knew how to instruct if he wanted to. When my turn came he asked me how much flying time I had had, and after I told him about three hundred and twenty-five hours he turned the controls over to me, with orders to take the ship around and land it. I had some difficulty in flying with my right hand. The wartime ships which I was accustomed to were built to be flown with the left, but after the Armistice it was decided to change the throttle over to the other side, on the theory that the right hand was the natural one to fly with. After three landings, however, Sergeant Winston got out of the cockpit and told me to fly around and land it. I had some used to right-handed piloting.

When we were not flying we were gathered around the stage house watching the progress of our classmates and learning how to turn the propellers over in starting the engine without placing ourselves in a position to be struck in case it kicked backwards. To a pilot, the propeller is the most dangerous part of his plane, and is a constant source of worry to him when his ship is on the ground among people who vie with each other in seeing how close they can stand to the whirling blade while the motor is still running. Then there is usually a contest to see who can be first to move it up and down after it stops turning over.

A cadet is usually given about ten hours of dual instruction before he is allowed to solo. The instructor first takes him up, and after flying around for a few minutes, allows the student to take hold of the controls to get an approximate idea of the amount and direction of movement necessary for gentle banks and turns. Then the instructor throws his hands up in the air in full view of the student—the signal that he has turned over the entire control of the ship. The cadet is given the opportunity suddenly to realize that flying is not a simple operation of pulling the stick back to go up and pushing it forward to come down, but that an instinctive and synchronized movement of all controls is necessary even to keep the machine in level flight.

Frenchmen Can Learn Much From Americans In Matters of Money

PARIS, Jan. 20.—(INS)—Frenchmen have much to learn from Americans in matters of money, according to Professor Fortunat Strowski, recently returned from the new world.

"For an American," he writes in "Comœdia," "wealth is only a thing of the moment. It does not belong to the family; it is in the hands of the possessor like a ball in the hand of some player. The ball is thrown, he receives it and returns it, trying to place it according to the rules of the game which is either won or lost, as far as he is concerned."

"In America, the father of a family owes no patrimony to his children. He esteems it enough to feel certain that his children are able to make as good a living as he did and thus, will his fortune to some hospital or university."

"The American uses his money for doing great things: the Frenchman uses his for establishing a great family or doing a lot of foolish things—this is the great difference."

Monsieur Strowski says he was pleased to find that almost no American thinks much about economizing. He is not obliged to have much money at one time; Madame's fur coat can be paid on the installment plan, a dollar a month. Monsieur's motorcar and his car in the same manner.

"In America," writes Monsieur Strowski in conclusion, "money

CHAPTER I

Fabien Ready to Become a Priest
It was a glorious May morning filled with great promise of happiness and love!

The Chevalier Fabien Des Grieux, a romantically poetic youth, talked quietly with some fellow graduate students at the White Horse Inn, at Amiens, while waiting for the Paris diligence to carry them on to St. Sulpice to complete their training for the priesthood.

Fabien's parents belonged to one of the first families of Picardy and he gallantly reflected the fact that he was a gentleman of the highest type. He was a great favorite with his student associates and the inhabitants of the town. His life had been so well regulated and studious that his masters had pointed to him as a model of conduct for other scholars. Not that Fabien made any sacrifices or efforts to acquire this reputation, but a naturally tranquil disposition and a love for study had made him apply his time to work and duty. He had an unborn dislike for vice that was accepted as positive proof of virtue.

Fabien had earned his title, of Chevalier, by being decorated with the cross and when the Bishop of the Diocese proposed that upon graduation he enter the church, Fabien accepted the honor as one entirely to his liking.

Presently a gray brother rode up to the Inn and, leaving his mount outside the gate, began searching for Fabien among the people at the little iron tables in the yard. He was greatly relieved to learn from one of the students that the youth he sought was in the tavern. The kindly old man's mission was important and his face lighted up.

The fragrant pink blossoms from the flowering trees fluttered against the windows and mingled with the dust as the horses plodded on toward the Inn.

Spring seemed to feel that she had a rival inside the great coach. It was true. Nature never made a more beautiful creation than Manon Lescaut. Her face was fair—the kind that haunted and moved men's souls. Once a man saw her she lived always in his heart. She was truly feminine, yet so deliciously beautiful that she seemed unreal.

As the great bells in the Chapel tower made themselves heard above the rumble of the diligence, Manon suddenly stopped stroking the fluffy white kitten she held in her lap and a shadow fell across her face.

Her elder brother, Andre Lescaut, resplendent in the gay uniform of the Guards, watched her narrowly from his sprawled out position on the other side of the diligence.

"What's the trouble, little sister? Are you already turning up your pretty nose at the thought of convent life?" Lescaut inquired quizzically.

"No, no, brother dear," Manon hastened to correct him, at the same time trying to control her trembling lips. "My only thought is to do as you wish and not worry you—because you are all I have."

Nevertheless, at the prospect of lonely convent life, Manon buried her face in the great pink bow on her kitten's neck so that her brother, and perhaps the other occupants of the diligence, would not see the tears that came to her eyes as her efforts to keep them back.

Lescaut shrugged his shoulders

Her elder brother, Andre Lescaut, resplendent in the gay uniform of the Guards, watched her.

with great sympathy and love when he saw Fabien talking with Jean Tiberge, a loyal friend and fellow student—one need never worry about the company that Fabien found congenial!

"My son," said the lay brother, taking a little medal from his belt and quietly presenting it to Fabien. "Here is a medal for protection against worldly evil—the Bishop made me give it to you before you gave us to complete your training."

Fabien bowed in reverent thanks over the lay brother's hand as he accepted the holy token. A divinely spiritual expression spread over his face. He could not refrain from thinking how little he needed such a charm. Worldly desires and appetites could never tempt him from his studies and calling! And those who knew him were just as sure of this as Fabien himself.

"Ah! Fabien, I am delighted," broke in Tiberge, putting his arm about his friend's shoulder. "You have earned that reward in all fairness. None of us can equal your brilliance and unselfish devotion."

"I deserve no credit—I have simply found my calling and every thing else follows along naturally."

"Perhaps that is true," agreed Tiberge. "It is quite characteristic of you to take no credit for anything you do."

A beautiful smile lighted up Fabien's face as he heard his friend's compliment.

"You know, Tiberge, my greatest regret at leaving here is that you are not ready to depart at the same time. It is difficult to leave a loyal friend with whom one has grown up. I shall never forget you, and your thousand good qualities. We shall meet again, later on when we become—"

The remainder of Fabien's sentence was left unfinished when the students in the courtyard loudly announced that the diligence was appearing down the road.

The soft green leaves danced gracefully on their waying branches and gently brushed against the dusty diligence as it wound along the narrow road through the sunshine.

MISS ALLISON DETAFLAINE, SOCIETY EDITOR.

Travelogue Holds Chief Interest of Church Society

Trinity Lutheran Brotherhood, under the direction of the new official family for the year, 1928, met in regular session in the social rooms on Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The interest at the outset of the new year is quite promising for a big year in the history of the organization.

After the preliminary opening Mr. Joseph Lynch, past commander of the local post of the American Legion and Miss Emma Johnson, advance agent of the U. S. Military band, were introduced. Miss Johnson told of the coming of the band to Circleville on Feb. 1, and solicited the support of the Brotherhood in helping the American Legion to put the proposition over. The Brotherhood pledged its material and moral support to this cause.

Miss Johnson then delighted the audience by impressively singing "Some Time We'll Understand." After the regular business session, the luncheon committee served "Bob" Bremer's famous country sausage, cheese, dill pickles and coffee.

After the half hour social session, Mr. E. Sengenbrunner gave a travelogue on his last summer's trip to Yellowstone Park and the Pacific Coast, which proved so intensely interesting that the whole evening was taken up and the balance of the regularly assigned program had to be postponed until the next session.

Within a couple months the Brotherhood will be housed in the new Parish House that is nearing completion, which will be another impetus for rapid strides and big successes for the coming year.

Evening Bridge

Mrs. Frank Kline will entertain Monday evening with an evening bridge party at her home on Watt Street.

To Honor Guest

Mrs. George Crites has for her house guest, Miss Dorothy DuPrey of Columbus, in whose honor she will entertain her bridge club Friday evening at her home on South Court Street. Miss DuPrey will remain until Sunday.

Classes to Meet

Members of the adult Sunday school classes of the Methodist Churches of New Holland and Atlanta have been invited to attend a county wide meeting of adult classes in Circleville on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. While no organized plans have been made in those two towns, quite a few individuals will probably attend the meeting.

At Barrere Home

Mrs. William Foreman, Miss Laddie Brunner, Miss Grace Moody and Miss Grace Clark assisted at the delightful luncheon-bridge Thursday at 12 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Elger Barrere on West Union Street. Mrs. Howard Jones and Mrs. Hartley Clarke were awarded the prizes at bridge.

In the evening at a six o'clock dinner bridge, the assisting hostesses were Mrs. Tom Brown and Mrs. Charles Weaver, and the prizes were given to Mrs. Turney Weldon and Miss Abbe Clarke.

Dinner Guests

Mrs. Bertha Teegardin and Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Steele, of Circleville, were guests last Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Dresbach in Kingston, where they were entertained with a dinner party.

Celebrates Birthday

In celebration of her husband's fortieth birthday, Mrs. William D. Cady, of South Scioto street, entertained ten of his friends to a six o'clock dinner Thursday evening at their home. The guests were Mr. Walker Baughman, Mr. M. B. Trout, Mr. Charles Radcliff, Mr. Morris Brothers, Mr. W. F. Baker, Mr. J. M. Leach, Mr. R. Z. Myers, Mr. Proctor Baughman, Mr. A. T. Hammel, Mr. H. G. Stevenson and Mr. C. C. Chappellear. After the dinner Mr. Stevenson making an appropriate speech on behalf of the guests, presented Mr. Cary with a smoking set as a birthday gift.

Announce Marriage

Mr. and Mrs. Roy McMullen of West High street, announce the marriage of their daughter, Ursula, to Mr. Harrison Wolfe, on September 22, 1927. Mr. Wolfe is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wolfe, of Kingston. He is associated with the Mead Pulp and Paper Co., in Chillicothe in which town they will go to housekeeping in a short time.

Entertains Club

Mrs. Albert Crist entertained her bridge club Thursday evening at her home on North Court Street. Mrs. Harvey Sweyer received the prize for high score, and the prize for next high score went to an out-of-town guest, Mrs. O. P. Kraft of Sycamore, O.

Guests for Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Underlin, of South Court Street entertained four of their friends Thursday evening to an old fashioned trout dinner. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. T. O. Gilliland and Mr. and Mrs. Karl Herrmann.

Has Bridge Games

Mrs. L. E. Lutz had two tables of bridge Thursday evening at her home on South Scioto street, when Mrs. Adrian Yates received the trophy for high score.

Guests at Luncheon

Mrs. Ruth McDonald, Mrs. Charles Gilmore and Mrs. Frank Barrett motored to Washington, C. H., Friday where they were luncheon guests at the home of Mrs. Willard Story.

PERSONALS

Mr. Phillip Neff, Mr. Robert Trimble, Mr. Leo Green and Mr. Harry DeWitt were business visitors in Circleville, Thursday.

Billy, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Carpenter, of Muhlenberg township, is recovering from a tonsil operation performed Wednesday by Dr. C. G. Stewart.

Mrs. Edgar Pross went to Columbus Friday to visit Mrs. Hester Clingan. They will see Al Jolson in "The Jazz Singer" at the Grand Theater.

Mrs. John Ryan and daughter, Rita Jean are visiting at the home of Mrs. John English on North Scioto Street.

Mrs. Ralph Boggs, of Pickaway township, went to Newark Friday to visit relatives.

Mr. Ed. Mason, of the Mason Brothers Furniture store, was in Columbus Thursday on business with General Electric company.

Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, of South Pickaway street, has accepted a position in the public schools of New Holland as teacher of the seventh grade, until the end of the school year. In this room classes for two grades had been held because of the large number of pupils, and now Mrs. Johnson will have charge of the seventh grade scholars.

NEW YORK—William Connors, 41, lost both arms and one leg by amputation recently. Then physicians told him they would have to amputate the remaining leg. Connors took their edict philosophical and laughed.

NEW YORK—The huge citadel of St. John the Divine was described as a "mausoleum of the dead past," rather than a place for modern worship, by the Rev. William N. Guthrie, pastor of St. Marks-in-the-Bowwerie.

NEWARK, N. J.—Dewitt E. Sellick chose to go to jail rather than pay $1.65 poll tax, but later paid it to regain his freedom. Then he sued for $20,000, contending he did not owe the money and his arrest was false.

Nursing Record In Two Continents Hard to Equal

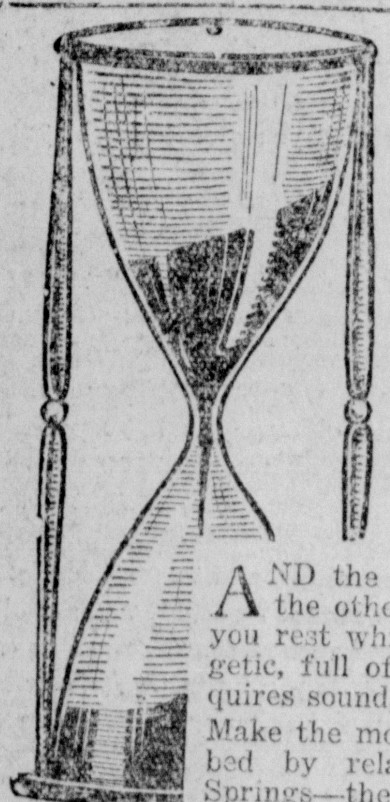

Nurse Waite of New Brighton writes: "After fifty-five years of tireless labor nursing mankind, I am now retiring. While nursing in New York, in my early twenties, I was poisoned by food, my sister nurse recommended your wonderful CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS. The doctor told me that I would have died had I not taken the pills. I am never without them and have prescribed them for thousands of my patients who were suffering with indigestion, gas and sour stomach, business, sick headache and constipation. These pills are indeed a wonderful laxative, being purely vegetable, small and easy to take, children, as well as older people can swallow them easily." CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS. C. A. C. DOWNED IN FAST CONTEST BY FEDERAL FIVE

CLUB QUINTET IS BEATEN BY 33 TO 30 SCORE

Visitors, Trailing at Half, Spurt Ahead to Give Locals First Defeat.

In one of the fastest games of the season, one of those games that kept the crowd on the edge of their seats every minute, with first one team then the other forging ahead, the Federal Glass five, of Columbus, defeated the C. A. C. boys by a 33 to 30 count, Thursday night.

Although finishing the first half on the short end of a 22 to 17 score, the visitors were undaunted and came back strong, so strong in fact, that they were able to squeeze out victory. But the C. A. C. boys were going too, and even though they lost the game, they need feel no shame, because they went down fighting to the last ball, playing a fast, clean game. A game that was any one's game, with time playing a big factor in its outcome.

German Brewer Faces 14,977 Years in Jail, Or 82,000,000 Marks Fine

PARIS, Jan. 20.—(INS)—Otto Nodding will serve 14,977 years in prison or pay his fine of eighty-two million marks according to the finding of the Mayence courts.

Herr Nodding is a brewer and was found guilty of defrauding the government on taxes—the court fined him eighty-two million marks.

Nodding is not in a position to pay the fine. The law provided a one day prison term for each fifteen marks the condemned is unable to pay, which makes in Nodding's case 14,977 years.

the outstanding player of the game. His defence work was perfect, and he accounted for 12 of the club's markers. Gatrell also played a fine game and was also responsible for 12 of the club's scores. Had Art Steele been up to form, the Columbus team would have been out of luck. But Art, due to a three day period of illness, was somewhat slowed up.

Lamberton at center, and Kraft at guard, played best for the visitors.

FLOOR GAMES ARE DIVIDED BY PICKAWAY

Township Basketball Teams Win and Lose in Tilts With Kingston Players.

Pickaway high school girls and boys locked horns with Kingston high on their floor on Wednesday, Jan. 18, and divided the honors of the evening. Pickaway girls won by the score of 11 to 14, while the boys were defeated in a close contest. The final score standing 19 to 20, Kennedy, of Chillicothe, was the referee of both games. Enoch, Smith, and Babb were the principal point getters for Pickaway boys, while Wolford played an important guard position.

The line-up:

Friday night the New Holland delegation will meet the Pickaway boys and girls on Pickaway's floor. This game promises to be a live one and should draw a record crowd.

Pickaway Township Parent Teacher Association will hold its next regular meeting on Feb. 16. A fine program is being arranged.

The Grange Ladies' basketball team meets for regular practice next Monday night under the direction of Mr. Cameron. All ladies are expected to be present for their first practice.

The rat hunt, being conducted by the Logan Elm Grange, is nearing a close so every one is requested to get busy and bring in the rat tails. So far the North and the South division under the leadership of their captains are running neck and neck. The finish date will be March 1.

IRELAND'S LEADER ARRIVES FOR VISIT

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(INS)—William T. Cosgrave, president of the Irish Free State, got his first glimpse of New York this morning. He arrived from Ireland on the liner Homeric, which dropped anchor off quarantine early today. Because of stormy weather, the liner was two days late.

A welcoming committee and a large group of supporters of the Irish Free State were to take President Cosgrave aboard the municipal steamer Macon for a tour of the harbor. He was to be officially received by Mayor Walker at the City hall just before noon.

President Cosgrave then will be taken in charge by a committee from Chicago and headed for the Illinois city at once.

In Chicago he is to have a

SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY
UNITED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

Ace Hudkins of Nebraska, who recently sat in his corner in a California ring, waiting vainly for Joe Dundee to come to fight him for the welterweight championship, starts all over again tonight to make his way towards the title.

Hudkins meets Lew Tendler, of Philadelphia, as good a trial horse as there is to be found in the 147-pound division, a veteran of memorable, grueling battles with Benny Leonard in the latter's prime as lightweight king.

The Nebraska Wildcat will receive a real test at the capable hands of the Philadelphia Hebrew, but Ace should get by Lew without too much trouble. Then will come a bout with Sergeant Sammy Baker in February, and then, if Hudkins still survives this elimination process now so popular in fistie circles, he will be matched with Dundee once more.

The last time Hudkins was to have met the champion, the latter refused to enter the ring.

A California promoter had guaranteed Dundee $80,000 for the bout, but Joe found out at the last minute what they were going to use for money, and declined to appear.

When the time for the fight arrived, so did Hudkins. The Ace and his seconds climbed through the ropes and busied themselves with the familiar preliminaries, the taping of the hands, and choosing and donning of the gloves, the flexing of the leg muscles and the sucking of a bit of lemon.

But no one came to sit on the opposite stool. Hudkins became nervous, and so did the crowd. Finally the latter rose en masse, tore down the ring, broke the chairs and stormed the box office demanding its money back.

Safely barricaded in a hotel room, Dundee and his manager, Maxy Waxman, remained obdurate. They wanted to take the $80,000, but it had to be in something other than California promises.

So the boxing commission suspended everyone concerned, and that was the end of Hudkins' big opportunity.

Now opportunity gives one of these rare second knocks at the Wildcat's door.

Tex Rickard insists, however, that the Ace must show his ability by bowling over a few of the lesser contenders before being privileged to meet Dundee under the promoter's auspices. Tex pays the boys in real currency, and does his best to extract real fighting in return.

The last time Hudkins fought here, with Col. Lindbergh just back from a brief trip to Paris, looking on, Sergeant Sammy Baker beat the Wildcat to a pulp and flung aside the carcass.

Maybe the fact that "Lindy" came to see him was too much for Ace, but whatever caused it, he was terrible that night.

Tendler is 30 years old and has been fighting prominent professionals since 1912. He is one of the real veterans of the ring, and while he is past his prime is still a dangerous opponent.

Lew fought a draw with Joe Dundee, the present champion, in 1925.

series of receptions. Later he will visit Canada and return to New York again on Feb. 1.

NORTHWESTERN IS BEATEN BY STATE

Championship Aspirations of Chicago Crew Receive Set-back at Columbus.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 20.—(INS)—It took Ohio State to trip up Northwestern in its triumphant march toward the big ten basketball championship.

The Buckeyes won here last night by the score of 43 to 38. It was Northwestern's first defeat of the season. Incidentally, the result leaves Purdue the only undefeated team in the circuit.

Because they had previously been walloped by Michigan and Wisconsin, the Buckeyes were calculated to be "duck soup" for the tough Northwesterners, the latter having beaten Michigan, Chicago and Iowa.

But such was not the case, and the principal reason was one Captain Bell who sat on the bench during the first half. This period ended with the Wildcats in front, 24 to 22.

While Bell was not the leading scorer, his appearance in the lineup seemed to shatter the Wildcats' confidence, for they promptly "blew up."

Bell scored 8 points; Van Heyde a sub center, accounted for 12 more, but Hinchman, a sophomore guard, topped them all with 14 points. Hinchman was the flashiest player on the floor.

Even a trout would never get caught if it kept its mouth shut.

PENIZEK MEMOIRS PUT NEW LIGHT ON MAYERLING DEATH

VIENNA, Jan. 20.—(INS)—Fresh light is thrown on the famous Mayerling tragedy, in which the Crown Prince Rudolph, an Austrian, is supposed to have murdered Baroness Marie Vetsera, an Austrian girl, and then committed suicide, in the third volume of the memoirs of Herr Penizek, which has just been published here.

Herr Penizek was for many years parliamentary correspondent for the Czech newspaper "Narodni Listy." The writer states that the truth of the Mayerling affair is that Prince Rudolph did not commit suicide, as is generally supposed, but that he was murdered by Baron Baltazzi, Marie's guardian. Penizek gives as his authority Professor Albert, the court physician.

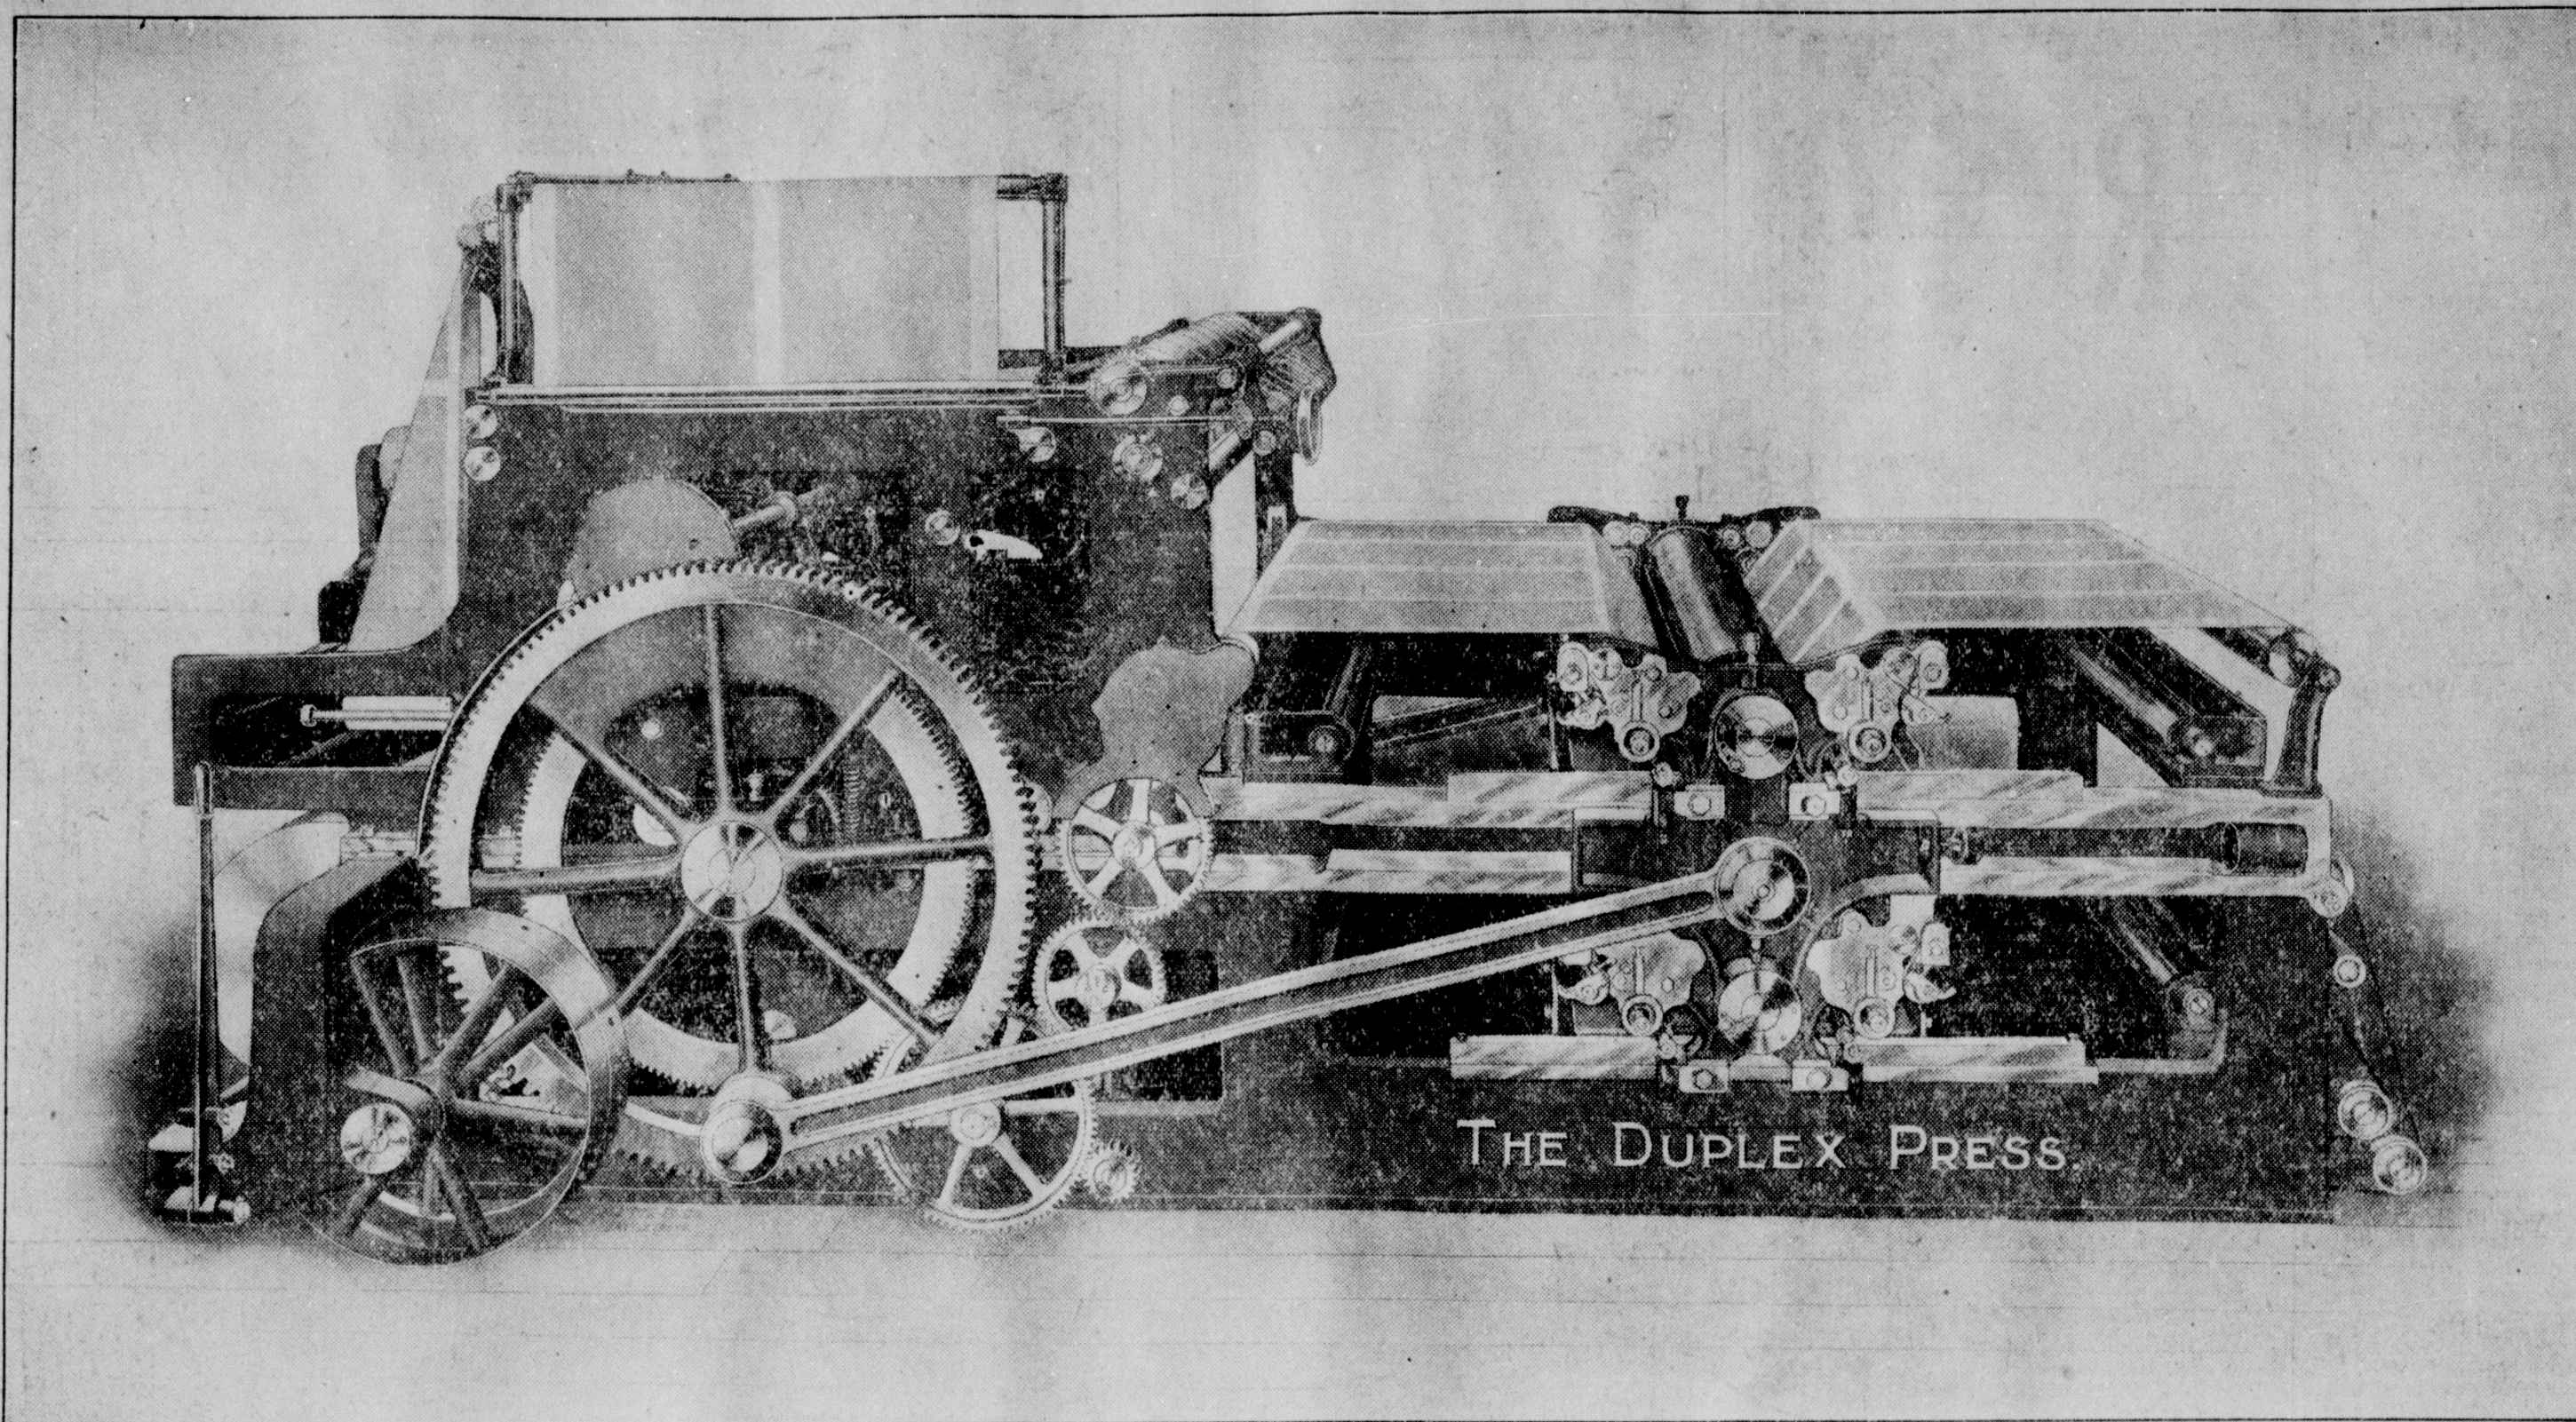

The general idea of the Mayerling tragedy is that Prince Rudolph left Vienna on January 28, 1889 with the Baroness, who was only 17 years old, after a violent quarrel with his father, the Emperor Francis Joseph. They drove in a private face through the Vienna woods to the hunting lodge of Mayerling.

The next morning, the pair were found dead together. It was assumed the Prince had murdered the girl and then shot himself.

Herr Penizek's story is that Professor Albert came to him the same day, saying: "I have committed the greatest crime possible for a doctor. I have allowed myself to be persuaded to sign a false death certificate stating that Prince Rudolph committed suicide."

Penizek's version states that Baron Baltazzi followed Prince Rudolph and his ward to Mayerling, and accused the Prince of betraying the Young Baroness. After a heated argument, Penizek states, the Baron shot the Prince with a double-barreled shotgun taken from the wall of the hunting lodge, and committed suicide to escape the shame of a public airing of the affair.

sanctity of the relation of priest and penitent threatens to overshadow the main issue in the unique murder trial drama that is docketed to open in Rockingham Superior Court this month.

It is the case of Mrs. Alma Petty Gatlin, pretty girl-wife of Eugene Gatlin, fire chief of Reidsville, who will face trial for her life, accused of the gruesome axe-murder of her 50-year-old father, Smith T. Petty, a cotton mill foreman.

The patricide charge against the youthful Reidsville girl is based on the statement to authorities by Rev. Thomas F. Pardue, erstwhile Reidsville minister-evangelist, that she confessed the ghastly crime to him during a religious ecstasy.

Preacher's Testimony

That the prosecution will base its case largely on the testimony of the Reidsville minister-evangelist has been clearly indicated by Solicitor Allen Gwyn, to whom Rev. Pardue told his story, resulting in the discovery of Petty's axe-hacked body buried in the basement of the Petty home, after he had been mysteriously missing for more than a year.

Never in North Carolina jurisprudence has a court been asked to pass upon the competency of such evidence as the evangelist turned over to the county prosecutor in a trial that involved the life of the defendant.

The prosecution, in revealing that it would place the minister on the stand to tell his story, said it knew of no statute in North Carolina which would throw out the testimony of the minister between the minister and the alleged penitent.

But this issue, whether or not it brings forth a preliminary skirmish for the life of the girl-bride defendant when the trial gets under way the week of January 23, it will, it is expected, create no little controversial discussions in circles outside the courtroom.

Opinion Divided.

That such very likely will be the case already has been indicated in this section recently, when various ministerial and lay bodies took decided stands on the issue, condemning or lauding the evangelist for "turning up" the alleged murderer.

Rev. Pardue's own congregation backed him up on his action. Several evangelistic audiences and ministerial associations at the time went on record as being opposed to the act of the minister. At any rate the matter is still a lively topic for street corner conversations hereabouts as the date of the trial draws near.

The story of the alleged confession, which the defendant steadfastly maintains was never made, was related by the minister in words to the following effect:

"It was after services one night in April that Alma came to me and asked to speak with me alone. We proceeded up into the choir loft, and she asked me: 'What chance have I to be saved if I have murdered someone?'"

"Alma, you don't mean that!" I said. 'You haven't killed anyone.'

"Yes, I have," she replied. 'I want to know if I can be saved.'

Her "Confession."

"I then told her to return to her home, and that I would see her again. Next day I invited her to have dinner with me, and that evening, before the next service, she told me the story."

The "story" was this, according to the minister: Mrs. Gatlin murdered her father in March of last year. He had been believed to be missing for more than a year, but authorities fearing no foul play, had not investigated.

She killed her father, Mrs. Gatlin is alleged to have confessed, one morning as she prepared his breakfast after his all-night drunken debauch had kept her mother, who was ill at the time, from sleeping. Enraged at her father's conduct, the confession runs, she on impulse struck him over the head with an axe, and as he lay in a dazed condition on the floor, taunted him with her previous threat of "I'll kill you some day!" before delivering the fatal blow.

Authorities, after hearing Mrs. Gatlin's alleged confession, went to the home she formerly occupied and found Petty's body buried in the basement. The same day Mrs. Gatlin was arrested and charged with the crime. She protested she did not make the alleged confession credited to her by the minister.

REAL "WILD WEST" FOUND IN HUNGARY; UNDER TRIBAL RULE

LONDON, Jan. 20.—(INS)—A European mystery land is discovered—a great Wild West "more romantic and more uncivilized than the ones shown by a thousand American films."

Open spaces roamed by cattle and wild horses, inhabited by cowboys of a thousand years ago—open spaces wild and dangerous lying a desert no-man's land in the heart of Central Europe's broiling nations—this is the land which has recently been discovered to the western world. Towards the borders of Hungary it lies "only a few hours' journey from Budapest."

Cowboys (Chicos they are called) wear black "ten-gallon" hats with brims broad and curled. Long riding boots reaching almost to the knee they have and skirts plaited and divided like Buffalo Bill's Western "chaps." The roughish silk scarf of the American cowboy the Chico replaces with a red, blue and green embroidered mantle thrown rakishly as a cloak over his shoulder. The pipe this warrior carries is one resembling the Indian's long clay pipe of peace.

The Chico rides his horse saddleless—but with a blanket thrown across the animal's back. The blanket is ungirthed and to its sides stirrup straps are attached. Around the pony's neck the lariar is wound. (The chico is never without this). A single movement—a jerk of the hand—and the lariar is loosened and ready for action.

No six shooter for weapon—but a whip the chico has with a "phonically long lash." He uses this with trained skill on offense and on defense. He can catch and bind a pig, sheep or other small animal at will with his whip. A savage cast and the lash coils about the animal's body.

The Chico's live on their "no-man's land" for life. They live in camps and the camps lie distances apart. They are somewhat "open air camps" for their huts are only partly roofed.
